Kearns Company Among 120 Accused of Violating Meat Regulations.

Thousands of Mansfield and Richland county housewives were told today by the Office of Price Administration exactly how hard the price of pork can hit their pocketbooks on and after April 1.

Striking at the core of the black market operator's existence, exorbitant illegal profits, OPA's new retail pork price ceilings are designed to assure consumers of a "fair share at a fair price" of one of the basic foods in America's diet.

The maximum pound price schedule to go into effect April 1 is divided for small independent dealers and chain store or large independent dealers. Here's the scale for zone 7, which includes Ohio and parts of West Virginia.

Small Independents

Sliced bacon, grade A, 47 cents.

Skinned, smoked ham, center slices, 60 cents.

Skinned, smoked whole ham, 40 cents.

Center cut pork chops, 42 cents.

Salt pork, 25 cents.

Chains and Large Independents

Sliced bacon, grade A, 45 cents.

Skinned, smoked ham, center slices, 57 cents.

Skinned, smoked whole ham, 39 cents.

Center cut pork chops, 50 cents.

Salt pork, 23 cents.

Meanwhile today, included in 120 government suits filed in Cleveland federal court today in OPA's effort to stamp out practices contributing to black market operations, was one seeking to restrain the Kearns Packing company, 228 Wayne street, from slaughtering operations until certain ration regulations are complied with.

County Population Up 585; War Areas Gaining Thousands

Richland county's population increased 585, or eight-tenths of one per cent, from 1940 to May 1, 942, while Marion and Erie counties and other Ohio war activity centers showed great increases in the same period, civilian population estimates released by the bureau of census showed today.

The figures, compiled largely on the basis of sugar rationing registrations, placed the Richland county population at 74,438 last May 1 as compared with 73,853 on April 1, 1940.

Richland county was classed as a semi-metropolitan area with the city and rural populations fairly even. Metropolitan districts, particularly those with a large number of war plants, showed gains in most sections of the state. Rural areas generally lost population in the wartime shift to busy industrial centers.

While Richland county was picking up a few civilian workers, Marion county's increase was 583 with a total population of ,481. Erie county (Sandusky),

Credit for the smashing victory scored by American air forces over a 22-ship Japanese convoy off the coast of New Guinea in the Bismarck sea is divided between the men who directed the American activities and the performance of the A-20 attack bombers and the B-25 Mitchell medium bombers and their crews. Lieut. Gen. George C. Kenney is commander of the Allied Air Forces in the southwest Pacific and Brig. Gen. Ennis Whitehead is chief of operations. All 22 Jap ships were sunk and 62 enemy aircraft were shot down. Ten of the Jap vessels were warships, the other 12 being transports.

$15,449 TOTAL SPURS WORKERS IN FUND DRIVE

100 Per Cent Reports Begin To Arrive at Red Cross Headquarters.

Mansfield's Red Cross war fund drive got into high gear yesterday with reports today showing an accumulated total of $15,449 toward the city's quota of $45,500.

Approximately $7,600 of this amount was collected yesterday when several firms joined the 100 per cent employe participation honor list and incomplete returns were reported by four major plants.

Shelby workers reported yesterday they had long since passed the half-way mark in their campaign to raise $10,500 by the end of this week. Red Cross stickers in windows of many rural homes and smaller towns were the only evidence so far that the rural areas were being contacted since none of the canvassers had reported. Several chairmen, however, had indicated substantial results.

After a slow start with only scattered reports having been made in Mansfield the figure until yesterday — a mere $1,450 — had been anything but gratifying. L. W. Birch, chairman of the county campaign, and city workers appealed yesterday for more complete statistics of the workers' progress in the drive which is hoped will net a county total of $59,000 by March 15.

Lumbermens Insurance company, which has boasted 100 per cent donations by employes for the past six years, contributed two and one-half times its quota yesterday.

Honor roll firms, where all employes contributed, include: Y. W. C. A., Tracy and Massa Insurance-Holibaugh and Wolfe Insurance, Harring's Meat Market, D. A. Meese Insurance, Althouse and Jones, Architects, Milady Beauty Salon, the City Building including general office, waterworks office and repair department, municipal court and city-county health office, and offices of Drs. A. C. Biddle, W. E. Wygant and John S. Hattery.

BABY SURVIVES

Born 5 Minutes After Death of Mother Through Operation.

CLEVELAND (INS) — A five-and-a-half pound baby boy today is thriving normally in a St. Luke's hospital incubator after being born by caesarian operation five minutes after his mother's death.

Hospital officials were reluctant to reveal the name of the 28-year-old physician who performed the operation by permission of the father, Eugene Greenbaum, a bank teller, who was with his wife when she died.

The infant was placed in the incubator only because of its premature birth. Dr. Carter said the baby was normal in every respect and would probably be removed to his home in two or three days.

Son Prisoner of Japanese, Loudonville Parents Told

Ever since they received a message from the war department a year ago informing them their son, Ervin, is "missing in action," Mr. and Mrs. Urban Peters, of Loudonville, clug to the hope that he was still alive.

Today they learned that Ervin, a fireman in the U. S. navy, is apparently alive, but is a prisoner of the Japs and is held in a prison camp near Tokyo.

At least that is what a message sent by short-wave radio from Tokyo said. It was picked up by J. A. Bahl, of Chicago, and Bahl immediately dispatched the message to Ervin's parents.

Apparently broadcast by Ervin, himself, the message as picked up by Bahl said:

"I'm Ervin E. Peters, 19, and if anyone hears this, please send word to my mother in Loudonville, Ohio."

Then followed the word he wanted to send to his mother: "Dear Mom, I am safe and well, and I am a prisoner in Tokyo, Japan, and I thought I could ease your aching heart, and hope our family circle will be together again soon."

The news was received by Bahl at 6:15 p. m. Tuesday, and he immediately wired the boy's parents.

Mrs. Peters broke into tears when she read the message. "I knew nothing could happen to my boy," she said.

Permission for prisoners to broadcast messages home has been allowed by the Japanese for propaganda reasons. Usually such broadcasts are preceded by announcements that the prisoners are "well treated and happy."

TELL HORRORS OF WORST U. S. SEA DISASTER

Survivors Reveal Ships Hit at Night Without Warning When 850 Lost Lives.

(By International News Service)

BOSTON, Mass. — Saved from death in the freezing waters of the turbulent North Atlantic, survivors from one of two ships sent to the bottom in one of the worst of America's sea tragedies, today gave accounts of their harrowing experiences.

Struck without warning in the middle of an overcast night, both vessels foundered within minutes after they were attacked in a twin torpedoing which took the lives of 850 Americans.

Men who followed the sea for the most of their lives were among those saved and even they quavered as they recited frantic efforts to locate shipmates whose cries of help they heard coming from inky black waters.

Neither of the vessels were identified by name but the crew of one apparently suffered the heaviest casualties. Of a complement of 904, it was reported that 678 were missing and hence presumed to be dead.

Said Howard W. Beach, 32, of Savannah, Ga.: "Conditions caused by the explosion made it impossible for a great many men below decks to escape."

The attacks, performed in true Axis fashion, were without warning and the torpedo ripped into the side of the vessel slightly to the aft of midship. An undetermined number were killed by the blast and countless others were trapped below as the ship turned on its side, topdeck perpendicular to the water and plunged to the bottom within a few minutes.

Split seconds, apparently meant the difference between life and death as attested by Second Offi-

TALLIES LOSSES

Britain Says 416 Warships Sunk, But Navy's Stronger.

LONDON (AP) — Britain has lost 416 warships during the war, Lord Bruntisfield, parliamentary secretary to the admiralty, told the house of lords yesterday in reply to a question.

A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, said yesterday, however, the Royal Navy was much stronger than a year ago.

Lord Bruntisfield gave this breakdown of losses: 44 submarines, five capital ships, seven aircraft carriers, 25 cruisers, 14 armed merchant cruisers, 94 destroyers, 14 corvettes, one monitor, eight sloops, 22 minesweepers, 156 trawlers, 14 drivters, one minelayer, three yachts, five gunboats and three cutters.

"Yankee Doodle Dandy"

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN, UP Hollywood Correspondent.

HOLLYWOOD—A weeping Greer Garson, triumphant on her fourth try, walked off early today with the Motion Picture Academy's imitation imitation-gold statuette symbolic of her rise to first place among Hollywood's movie actresses.

"I feel—yes, I feel just like Alice in Wonderland," sobbed the red-haired Irish star as last year's academy winner, Joan Fontaine, handed her the coveted statuette, made this year of plastic and painted gold-colored.

Miss Garson won the prize, while 1,300 movie makers bumped elbows in their applause for her role in "Mrs. Miniver," a picture which won most of the other Oscars standing on the table in the Ambassador hotel's Cocoanut Grove.

The film itself was judged best of 1942. William Wyler, now with the American Air Force in Europe, received the prize for directing it, while Teresa Wright, who played in support of Miss Garson, took the best secondary actress plum. The photographer and the writers of "Mrs. Miniver" also won awards.

Only non-Miniver prize winners among the top-notchers were James Cagney, named best actor for his work in "Yankee Doodle Dandy," and Van Heflin, who got the statue as best sup-

SENATE PANEL ASKS FARMERS BE DEFERRED

Declares Equaling of 1942 Food Output Record Almost Hopeless.

INACTION ATTACKED

Wickard Reported Increasingly Alarmed Over Lack of Rural Labor.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The senate military affairs committee reported today that the prospect for a food crop this year as large as 1942's "is almost hopeless of realization."

In a report urging passage of the Bankhead bill to defer farm workers from military service, the committee said that Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard "is increasingly alarmed about the inability to get enough farm labor to reach goals established for farm production this year.

Wickard "gets more alarmed day by day as a result of additional information and developments in the matter of farm labor," the report added.

Before announcing its conclusions, the committee had studied a special report by Col. Lewis Sanders of the selective service bureau who warned that:

1. The time has come to convert agriculture to the same war production basis as industry to avert hunger at home and unnecessary casualties on the battle fronts.

2. Talk about labor shortages, food riots and starvation must be supplanted with action because too little has been done and it is getting late.

The committee said that the Tydings amendment to the selective service act, granting exemptions to essential farm workers, has been "so circumscribed by red tape" in its administration that "it did not accomplish the desired result."

At the same time, the committee declared, "farm workers were lured from the farms by the attractive wages and short hours and better living conditions offered by war plants."

"It is evident that if something is not done soon to restrain the movement away from farms, the

Mead to Retire April 1 as Ohio Fuel Gas Manager

Retirement of William C. Mead on April 1 as district manager of the Ohio Fuel Gas company in Mansfield was announced today by company officials. He will be succeeded by G. K. Schooler, now the firm's district manager at Findlay.

Mead, who has been with the Ohio Fuel Gas company for 29 years and Mansfield district manager since 1930, is leaving the post because of ill health. He underwent an eye operation in a Columbus hospital several weeks ago and has been unable to return to his office.

Associated with the gas company since 1914 when he began as a clerk in the Circleville office, Mead came to Mansfield in 1920. He is a member of the board of education and has been active in welfare work for crippled children. He is a member of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce, and a past president of the Rotary club.

He is a veteran of World War I and served 18 months overseas. He is a member of the American Legion in Mansfield and chairman of the Citizens Naval Procurement committee in the Mansfield area.

The Mansfield district office of the Ohio Fuel Gas company also serves Marion, Bucyrus, Willard, Ashland, Shelby, Galion, Crestline and other towns in the Mansfield area.

Dr. Edmunds said the armament plants in that suburb could no longer handle the number of women that were supplied as a result of the canvass.

Push Foe Back In Russia and North Tunisia

Yanks, British Step Up Air Offensive In North Africa as RAF Hammers Germany for Ninth Night; Reds Shaping New Pincers Drive.

(By Associated Press)

Forty-ton Churchill tanks of the British First army were reported today to have thrown the Germans out of Sed Jenane, about 40 miles west of Bizerte in northern Tunisia, as the Allied air forces mounted a sweeping offensive in evident preparation for bigger things to come.

On the Russian front the Red army smashed one German defense position after another northwest of Moscow and captured 52 towns and villages, while to the south its drive northwest of Karkov was shaping the second arm of a pincers, now spread 250 miles apart, to flatten out the huge German central salient.

For the ninth successive night the RAF carried on its mighty aerial hammering of western Germany.

Field reports at Allied headquarters in North Africa said the British tanks threw the Germans out of Sed Jenane, a little village 12 miles south of the sea on the Mateur-Tabarka road, and after stiff street fighting held Col. Gen. Jurgen von Arnim's forces in check.

In central Tunisia American troops, reported yesterday within three miles of Faid pass, starting point of Marshal Erwin Rommel's recent offensive, were consolidating their positions, an Allied communique announced.

Farther south, French forces occupied Nefta, near the northwestern end of the Chott Djerid, a salt lake, and pushed on toward Gafsa, 60 miles to the east, the communique said. The Fighting French said their troops had joined Gen. Henri Giraud's Frenchmen in the action threatening the rear of the Mareth line.

Allied patrols were officially described as "very active" before the Mareth line, and dispatches from advanced bases in Tripolitania hinted the Allied aerial offensive was in preparation for a fresh plunge by Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery's British Eighth army.

Red nosed Warhawks from the east joined with Flying Fortresses and Lightnings from the west to put on an American blasting of Axis airfields from one end of Tunisia to the other in an effort to knock out the enemy's air power.

Guard All London Raid Shelters as Panic Kills 178

LONDON (AP) — Two constables were assigned to the entrances of all deep subway shelters today and other precautions were announced as officials investigated the London shelter disaster Wednesday night in which 178 persons were suffocated or crushed to death and at least 60 others injured during a German air raid.

The ministry of home security summoned all regional and local air raid protection officials to a conference and King George VI ordered a separate inquiry into the tragedy which developed when a middle-aged woman with a baby and a bundle fell on the crowded flight of steps and a pushing crowd piled up about her.

The woman was rescued from the pile, but her baby was suffocated.

The installation of extra lights at entrances and immediately within shelters has been ordered, and middle rails will be constructed to divide stairways leading down into shelters.

HAS THE CASH

State Liquor Department Ends Year With $6,000,000 Surplus.

COLUMBUS (U.P.) — The state liquor department reported in a financial statement today that it ended the year with a surplus of $6,988,282 after turning over $13,500,000 of profits into the state treasury in 1942.

The surplus was almost $878,000 greater than at the end of 1941. The 1942 profits made available for general state expenses those of 1941 by $5,435,000.

In addition to the profits, the department paid $10,778,504 in gallonage taxes into the general revenue fund for state purposes and collected more than $6,000,000 in liquor permit fees for local governments.

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddlers)
By ADELE GARRISON

"What do you mean by tonight, of all nights, Noel?" Mary inquired sweetly. "What's so special about tonight?"

Noel stared at her in astonishment.

"Have you forgotten," he said, "that my father and stepmother are giving an after-theater supper party for Georges, and that we are to be guests? Do you think I want Georges to see you in a rig like that? You always outshine everybody, everywhere, and tonight you look positively dowdy."

"Ouch!" Mary said with a light laugh.

"I mean it," Noel retorted "Georges will think that's what marrying me has done to you"

My fingers itched to slap him.

But it was clear that he regarded Mary as his property and wished to display her as he would a flower, or anything else he owned.

"Don't you see my viewpoint, Aunt Madge?" he asked

"I'm afraid I don't Noel," I answered, "To my eyes, that's a most becoming gown and extremely modish Has Noel seen it before?" I asked Mary, with a guileless air.

"Why, no, he hasn't," she said. "I bought it quite a while ago but I never have worn it, so I thought I'd spring it on 'em tonight. And I thought Noel would love it. But it's too late to change it now, for we must fly to get to the theater, as it is."

"The trouble probably is," I said, "that Noel has favorites among your gowns and anything different affects him adversely All husbands are the same way

"Please take a womans verdict, Noel," I said "That gown is beautiful and becoming, and everybody will admire Mary in it."

Standing behind him, Mary formed her lips into a round 'O,' and I could hardly keep my face straight.

"You are probably right" Noel said "but I still can't see it, and I don't like the gown But I suppose it is too late to change."

"And you'll be late for the theater unless I hurry away" I said airily. 'So good-night darlings Georges and I will meet you at your father's apartment about midnight"

I left them abruptly, and at my own apartment found my father talking again to Adams

"I want you to get Henderson, the taxi man, for me," he was saying. "Milner thinks he's his man and will report to him any movement of mine, so he won't have me trailed. Have Henderson at the door in half an hour.

"Now I am going over to see Philip Veritzen for a few minutes, and while I am gone do not admit anyone, Katharine Open the door only the length of the night chain, and tell anyone calling that Margaret is lying down and cannot be disturbed."

"I'll do that," Katharine said and when he was gone she and I looked at each other in bewilderment.

"Am I mistaken" she asked, "or did you say something about some federal officer who was to call your father at 8 o'clock, a call meant purposely for Milner's eavesdropping?"

I struck my hands together in annoyed remembrance.

"Yes I did tell you that," I said. "I hope father will be back in time, for I have no idea of what he might want me to say to the federal man for Milner's benefit"

A PATHETIC SPECTACLE

It is always sad to see a player almost make a fine play, and then miss it at the last moment That is what happens when a declarer is on his way to a neat squeeze play, or perhaps a pretty combination of a squeeze and lead-throwing end-play. He gets the hand played down, perhaps to the point where he has one trump left If he will only lead that last trump, he puts the pressure on the hapless opponent. But just then he loses his nerve, and switches to another suit so he can keep that final trump for protection Thus his pretty play is tossed out of the window.

What a chance East and West passed up to make a small slam in diamonds, for the sake of doubling their opponents. At that, South really should have made his contract, but failed to bring off the pretty play which was in the cards

East won the diamond 8 lead with the K and, not finding any other lead desirable, lay down the A to make the dummy ruff. Thereupon the declarer embarked on what looked to a kibitzer the winning play, as he had seen West's hand Club after club South played from his own hand, discarding correctly from the dummy so as to have as his last five cards there a trio of spades and two hearts His own hand retained two cards in each major and his last club.

If South had led the final club, West would have been stuck. If he tossed a heart, that would have given South the additional trick he needed right there. If he picked one of his three spades, South could have tossed one from dummy, led to the spade A and thrown West in with the other spade. The latter then would have had to lead from his heart K into the combination tenance.

South did not lead the last club, though. Instead, he led the spade 10, covered by the J and A, and returned another spade. West won, led his third spade, and South had to ruff. Then he could not help giving West the setting trick in hearts. Or, if he had put West in with a heart instead of a spade, he could have made his contract.

If West had bid clubs first and hearts later, doubled South's 4-Spades, cashed his aces of clubs, diamonds and hearts and led the diamond 8, how would you play the spade suit?

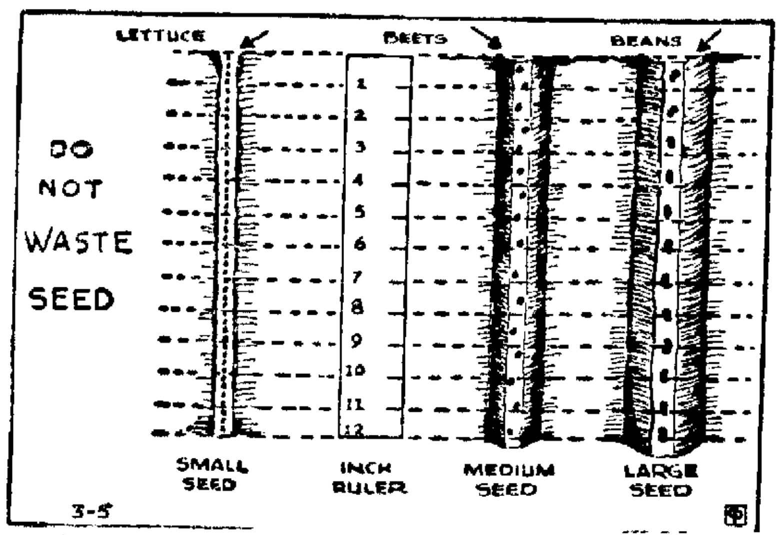
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



SEEDS ARE VICTORY GARDEN AMMUNITION

By DEAN HALLIDAY

(Released by Central Press Assn.)

Don't waste seeds, fertilizer or garden produce. These are the watchwords for Victory gardeners. There will be sufficient supplies of vegetable seeds for the 18,000,000 Victory gardens our country needs to help win the war, but none to waste.

Good seed is needed to grow good vegetables. Poor seed produces only disappointment. The best seed is the cheapest in the long run because of increased yields and improved quality of the produce.

The proper sowing of seeds without waste is often difficult for the amateur vegetable gardener. A good general rule for the new Victory gardener is to use speed sparingly. After the location of the Victory garden has been determined the size of the plot should be decided upon together with space allotments for various vegetables so that the right amount of seed can be ordered. And seeds should be ordered early this year.

In order to avoid wasting seeds when planting them study the accompanying Garden-Graph. The inch ruler in the illustration serves as a guide in the spacing of small, medium and large-size seeds. Lettuce and carrots, for example, should be spaced four or five seeds to the inch. Medium size seeds such as beets or radishes should be spaced more than twice as far apart as the very small seeds. Large seeds such as beans and peas should be planted from one to two inches apart. Cover the various kinds of seeds according to directions for depth of planting given on seed packets and cartons.

Seeds should be ordered from reputable seed concerns in ample time to be sure of getting the varieties desired.

VASHINGTON—An expert is someone who makes things sound complicated. Experts ake the organization of victory seem so com- licated that they discourage people into thinking at perhaps such a difficult task better not be tempted.

Of course the questions are complicated. Every estion that comes before the supreme court is complicated. But the court itself is a simple, broadly inspired institution that anybody can understand. It exists to handle complicated border-line questions. Likewise, it is precisely because post-war affairs are so complicated that we need an organization, such as a continuing conference of the United Nations, to deal with them.

The fact that the questions are difficult, with much to be said on both sides, is exactly the rea- n for having an international institution to handle em—not a reason against it. As President Eric hnston of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce says, morrow's world will be an international world.

If you don't have something like a United Na- ns organization, you will have anarchy, with ery nation trying to chisel out its own place st as Premier Sikorski of Poland is running from ondon here and back and bickering with Moscow, ying to muscle out a safe place for Poland after e war. Of course it is complicated, with little tions playing the big powers against each other d with the big powers intent on strategic fron- rs regardless of the little fellows.

But are these issues to be fought out by propaganda and pressure and power politics under conditions of anarchy where international blackmail is a common weapon? Or is not the fact that these problems are complex, with much justice on both sides, a strong reason for trying to place them inside an organization with technical facilities and deliberative processes? Suppose supreme court cases were fought out in political campaigns instead of inside the courtroom?

We should remember that it was the issue of Poland's territory that set off this war.

You can't talk about abandoning force in this world. You can only offer an alternative to force, as the Shotwell commission to study the organization of peace says in its third report, just issued. Force, says this realistic and practical, but broad-visioned report, is inescapable in human affairs. It cannot merely be abandoned. It must be controlled and used.

War has been used for exploitation and conquest. But it also has been used to maintain rights, to uphold principles on which civilization advances. War has been used as the last resort by which a nation could settle its disputes, defend its rights, or remedy its wrongs. These are necessary functions, for which provision must be made in any society—as the Shotwell commission's report emphasized. No nation can give up its right to make war, no matter how stupid or costly this method may be, until a substitute has been provided which can serve these purposes.

An international police force is necessary to restrain aggressors. But that is not enough. We must have a method for settling disputes, for remedying an unjust situation and for changing an unsatisfactory status quo.

FAIR ENOUGH--

VORCESTER—On Saturday night, Jan. 16, the Textile Workers of America of the CIO had banquet here at which Amos Cote was solemnly stalled in the office of president of the central assachusetts board of the union. The festivities re held in the headquarters of the joint board d were attended by the regional director of the ational War Labor Board and Emil Rieve, of New York, president of the national union.

The name of the regional director of the War Labor Board was given as Saul Wallen and Saul Waller, in the Worcester Sunday Telegram next morning. But, at the office of the board in Boston, in the absence of this official, himself, it was stated that his name is spelled Wallin.

At any rate, Mr. Wallen, Waller or Wallin, and Mr. Rieve made speeches and Mr. Cote re- onded. The party seems not to have been a k and file occasion for there were only about persons present and the membership, of course, much greater than that.

The Sunday Telegram published a photograph these distinguished persons and several Worces- policemen now or formerly on the local vice ad today put their fingers on the likeness of Cote and said he was the same Amos Cote o had been arrested on July 25, 1932, in a small ement apartment in the company of two women d convicted in the central district court of rcester, Special Justice Jacob Asher sitting, on arges of operating a house of prostitution, pos- sing gambling implements, to wit, two five-cent t machines and possessing liquor. This was in hibition days. One of the women was let go d the other was convicted of vagrancy.

Cote was sentenced to two terms of six months h, one for running a brothel, the other for pos- sing the slot machines and fined $100 on the uor charge. He paid the fine but was released probation until June 20, 1934, when, again, he was arrested on a liquor charge. This caused the revocation of his parole and he was sent to the house of correction to serve his six months. While thus engaged Cote was taken to court on the new liquor charge and given one month additional. He appealed this sentence and was given a new trial before a jury which took a more serious view and hiked the one-month sentence to three months and added a fine of $100 which was paid. Thus his total time out of circulation was nine months.

The police data in the files at headquarters in Worcester say the young woman who was convicted of vagrancy told the policemen of the vice squad that she shared her earnings 50-50 with Cote.

Cote is 40 years old, and is known to the Worcester police as a drunkard, a drunken driver and a brawler and, to their knowledge, never has been identified with work. In his pedigree he describes himself as an organizer and he is, at present, nothwithstanding the rubber and gasoline shortage, under another recent charge of driving while drunk, his fifth involvement as a driver.

In one previous case he drove through city streets at night at more than 60 miles an hour and was fined $25. Three other charges of drunkenness, two of them waived and the third disproved and a conviction of assault, resulting in a $5 fine, complete the record of his qualifications for the office of president of the central Massachusetts joint board of the Textile Workers of America.

By just what process Brother Cote became the leader or boss of not merely one local but a whole council, or joint board, of locals of the textile workers, none of the policemen who have been having official dealings with him as an offender for 13 years has the slightest idea except that he is a fast, persuasive talker with an invincible aversion to work. The textile industry is, of course, a vital war industry.

Unfortunately, the text of Brother Cote's own remarks on his instalation at the recent banquet and the thoughts expressed by Brother Rieve, the general president of the union, and Mr. Wallen, Waller or Wallin, regional director of the National War Labor Board, a government official, are not available at this writing.

AGREE OHIO'S TEST BLACKOUT REAL SUCCESS

Cleveland Looks Like 'Farm Land'; One Serious Accident Reported.

(By Associated Press)

Civilian defense officials were unanimous today in terming Ohio's 30-county blackout last night a successful test.

Ralph Stone, state defense director, and Col. Robert S. Harsh, liaison officer, fifth service command, fifth region, OCD, viewed Cleveland's experiment from a civil air patrol plane.

Stone said residences and business establishments were slow in complying with the first public warning but the blackout was effective during most of the 30-minute period. He said Cleveland from the air looked like "so much farm land."

Some scattered lights were observed, Stone reported, but he declared they would not have provided assistance to enemy planes seeking a target.

More than 1,000 industrial plants in the Cleveland area were required to participate in the test for at least five minutes but other factories in several counties also complied at their own request.

Only one serious accident marred the test in all the affected counties.

Elias Bloch of Steubenville, commander of the Jefferson county defense corps, reported two civilian defense volunteers were injured seriously in a head-on collision between a motorcycle and an automobile.

Bloch said Warren Caruso, chief of the auxiliary police of Pleasant Hill, and Jack Woodward, an auxiliary policeman, were en route on a motorcycle to the scene of a reported blackout violation when they collided with an automobile driven by George Granitor, an auxiliary policeman who was on routine patrol.

Adrenn Adams, an Akron warden, was given treatment for a head wound after he was struck by an automobile driven by a woman in the blackout.

The city of Warren accepted the blackout as an opportunity to simulate emergencies under actual raid raid conditions and tested fire, gas, police, ambulance, public works and other crews.

Shanties near war plants were stuffed with inflammables and set afire. A building collapse was staged with the report of "one dead and one missing."

Camp Millard at Bucyrus benefitted yesterday by Richland county's victory book campaign with 353 volumes shipped from the Mansfield Library depot to that destination.

At least that many more books await sorting and boxing for future shipment to some destination assigned by the national committee, Lois MacKellar, librarian and member of the victory book committee, said.

Meanwhile more organizations of the county received 100 per cent ratings bringing the total to 15 of the 85 participating. Gold stars, designating 100 per cent participation of members, are placed beside the club names on the huge honor roll which stands in the library's corridor.

TRAIN KILLS MAN AND WIFE

Shreve Couple Die at Crossing Near Vandalia.

A Shreve man and his wife were killed Thursday afternoon at a Shreve grade crossing while two Morrow county men died in a crossing crash at Vandalia near Dayton.

Victims of the Shreve tragedy were Charles Jackson, 24, and his wife, Delores, 24. Their car was struck by a westbound Pennsylvania passenger train. The Jacksons have one child who was not with them.

Double funeral services will be conducted Saturday afternoon in the Marengo Methodist church for Arthur Dye, 26, and Max L. Mowery, 36, of Chesterville, victims of the crossing accident at Vandalia. They were riding in a truck and were employed on an airport construction project.

DENIES SALES TAX CHARGES

Evatt Replies To Assertion Consumers Forced To Pay Up To 11 Per Cent.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Tax Commissioner William S. Evatt took issue today with Ohio legislators who demanded investigation of the sales tax administration on the ground that Ohioans paid millions which failed to reach the state treasury.

Three Democratic representatives, who introduced a resolution calling for an inquiry by a legislative committee, asserted that under the present system consumers were forced to pay vendors up to 11 per cent of the price of commodities, while the state assessed vendors only 3 per cent of their gross receipts.

Evatt said some inequalities were inherent in a "bracket" system such as Ohio's sales tax but that even in department stores the amount collected by vendors was only a shade over 3 per cent, possibly not more than 3.06 per cent, and reiterated that he would welcome on investigation.

He explained the tax on a 10-cent item amounted to 10 per cent, on a 33-cent item 3 per cent, but that in the upper brackets the tax actually was less than 3 per cent.

Replying to legislators' claims his department had ceased arresting vendors for failure to collect the tax or cancel receipts, Evatt said collections were made for all sales in enterprises where it was possible to make audits. He added audits of department store sales were impractical because too large a staff would be required. He expressed doubt, however, that the state suffered any appreciable loss because of a lack of such audits.

The investigation resolution was offered by Reps. John F. Cantwell of Youngstown and John T. Derighter and Lody Huml of Cleveland.

Up and Down THE STREET

A North Diamond street resident doesn't think the record compartment of a phonograph is a safer bank than a pants pocket, he told police. He said he secreted $5 in the music box and when he went to look for it—it was gone. Several times, he told Patrolmen John Gilbert and John Steel, money had been removed from pockets of his clothing. Police smilingly declared they've heard such reports before.

Pedestrians stared. Women blushed and men smiled. Scandal, they thought, was in the making, but instead it was just an undraped model that Frank Bunsey was carrying from Golden Russell's to the Home Interiors company of which he is proprietor. The model was soon dressed in the smart attire of a Red Cross worker and put into the effective and appealing display that decorates his show window. Almost every business on the street contributed something, material or idea, to the arrangement.

PROBE OF OWI APPEARS NEAR

Taber Bares Publication of 'Tarzan-Style' Book Glamorizing FDR.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—A congressional investigation of the farflung activities of the office of war information—including publication of a "Tarzan-style picture book" about President Roosevelt appeared imminent today.

Rep. John Taber, R., N. Y., ranking member of the house appropriations committee, expressed a desire to "look into a lot of OWI activities and to find out why they need 3,900 employes."

Chairman Clarence Cannon, D., Mo., said he would approve any formal request by Taber for an OWI investigation. The appropriations committee recently was empowered to investigate any government agency before approving its 1943 operations budget.

Taber described as "fourth term propaganda" an OWI picture pamphlet on the life of the president, and charged that it had been distributed in this country, despite OWI insistence that it was for foreign consumption only.

He said a copy of the booklet, which is titled "the Life of Franklin D. Roosevelt," and which he described as a "Tarzan-style picture book," was sent to him by a soldier in North Africa "who was indignant about such a waste of money."

"It is purely political propaganda, designed entirely to promote a fourth term and a dictatorship," Taber charged.

FBI PLANS FOR SCHOOL MARCH 11

Mansfield and Richland county law enforcement officers will attend a district conference at 1:30 p. m. March 11 in Grotto hall to be conducted by the Cleveland office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Police officials from Richland, Ashland, Crawford, Huron, Wyandot, Marion and Seneca counties have been invited to the quarterly conference by Lee V. Boardman, chief special agent of the Cleveland FBI office.

Probate Judge Stuart H. Cramer and Boardman will be the principal speakers. During a closed session sabotage cases will be discussed, motion pictures dealing with police sciences will be shown and Boardman will speak on "Powers of Perception."

OFFER WOMAN, CHILD LABOR BILL CHANGES

Sub-Committeemen Would Put Control in Hands of State Industrial Commission.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—A compromise bill on female and child labor was offered by the senate sub-committee on commerce and labor today in an effort to meet objections of labor.

It would empower the state industrial commission to regulate the occupations and working hours of women and minors and instruct the industrial relations department to continue policing war conditions.

The substitute is a redraft of the Ross bill whose broad aim was to make more manpower and young people available for war production and other industries handicapped by labor shortage.

This aim, if accomplished, must be achieved by lengthening the hours which women may work, now 45 a week in factories and 48 in most other forms of business; by opening to women numerous occupations from which they now are barred, and lowering the age limits at which boys and girls may be employed full time.

The Ross bill, which was considered by the full senate labor committee in four public hearings, proposed outright suspension or modification of the present female and child labor laws during the war emergency.

The CIO, AFL and United Mine Workers contended a commission should be set up to prescribe regulations under which the state director of industrial relations could relax the laws. Gov. John W. Bricker and the employers opposed this plan.

The substitute bill, prepared by Senators Theodore M. Gray, (R.-Miami), E. E. Addison, (R.-Franklin, and Fred G. Reiners, (R.-Hamilton), still does not place any limit on hours in war production, but it directs the industrial commission to prevent any abuses.

Like the original, the substitute fixes the maximum at 51 hours a week in most other industries.

Lamor leaders declined to comment on the substitute pending a thorough study. They will express their views in a meeting with employe representatives and the sub-committee Tuesday morning. The employers endorsed the original measure.

Other provisions of the substitute remove all hours restrictions on children, 14 or older, employed in the canning industry in harvest seasons; and prohibits women from repeatedly lifting weights in excess of 35 pounds (the limit now is 25 pounds and the Ross bill sought to abolish it.)

Heavy Buying of Clothing Boosts Tax to $11,008.

Continued heavy buying of wearing apparel helped to bring Richland county sales tax collections for the third week of February close to the mark for the corresponding week last year, the state treasurer's report showed today.

Receipts on Richland county retail sales for the week amounted to $11,008, only $133 under the third week of the month in 1942.

County collections so far total $63,358, or $9,582 below last year, the report said.

State-wide buying of women's apparel boosted tax receipts for the week ending Feb. 20 to $48,421 from $20,968 last year, a gain of 130.9 per cent. The tax on purchases of men's clothing climbed to $32,487 from $24,499 last year, a gain of 32.6 per cent. Collections on shoe purchases moved up 34.6 per cent, from $9,886 last year to $13,309.

TWO RESCUED, ONE BURNS

AKRON—(AP)—A stove explosion caused a fire that destroyed two homes and killed seven-year-old Shirley Humbert in nearby Sawyerwood. George Humbert, father of the victim, dropped two other children from the second floor window into the arms of a neighbor.

I thought I had a great story for you today. It came from Camp Campbell, Ky., and told how one Lewis McCullough of Mansfield played on the camp championship basketball team which had won 11 straight games, and was out seeking combat with championship quintets from other camps.

Now this would have been a great story indeed, since the only Lewis McCullough I could locate from Mansfield was the former Richland county coroner, and a picture of the good doctor playing championship basketball would have stunned his old intimates in the medical fraternity.

And then the last line of the story had Pfc. Lewis McCullough coming from West Mansfield, Ohio, which is a long way from Mansfield.

And if you think this communication from the armed forces was confusing you should have seen the one I got from the Marines which gave a flock of vital statistics on Cpl John David Hällabrin, including the fact that he played football three years at Ohio State enlisted in the Marines Feb 1 1942, and that he joined the 18th candidates class Dec 1, 1942 from Quantico, Va., after 10 months active duty.

Accompanying the statistics was a note saying that news of interest to local papers would be released by the local Marines recruiting office in this case, Cleveland.

Suspecting that something was indicated by all this, I put Civilian Intelligence to work, and discovered that our Johnny has been a lieutenant for a month now, and is stationed at Camp Bragg, N. C.

Communications from the Optimist basketball league at Friendly House are more to the point. One attached to a recent basketball box score said:

"Official Mike Wentz, the Friendly House physical director, reffreed both games nicly, but overlooked a few minor details which was all right."

The boys wouldn't be hinting, of course that Mike was just another Blind Tom.

Pity the lowly Redskins.

When Crestline knocked Bucyrus out of the district cage tournament the other evening the Redskins completed a season without a single victory and 16 defeats.

Nearest thing they could claim to a win came in a practice tilt. Practice makes perfect and in this case it didn't spoil the perfect record of 0-16 for the Redmen.

Coaches around the N. C. O. league tell me there's nothing wrong at Bucyrus that a few assistant coaches and some athletic equipment wouldn't cure. Nick Wasald, handling the coaching burden alone, must spend all his time trying to whip a first team into shape. He can't build for the future.

Zivic and Jack Battle Once More

NEW YORK —(INS)— Promoter Mike Jacobs' favorite bout, that bundle of fistic dynamite known as Beau Jack and foxy Fritzie Zivic, Pittsburgh's perennial juvenile like to fight each other and apparently the citizens of this village like to pay to watch them.

For the second time in a month, with no title at stake and nothing to gain but a couple of fat pay checks and considerable bruises, the boys will play to a sell-out crowd of some 20,000 souls when they meet in a 12-rounder at Madison Square Garden tonight.

The Beau defeated Zivic with ease in their first meeting but because Zivic was an underdog and the victim of a bad penalty by the referee, the house was rocked by a chorus of boos throughout the last couple of rounds and even after the decision had been announced.

DRAFT GRIDDERS

CHICAGO —(UP)— The player draft will highlight the annual business meeting of the National football league here April 6-8.

Grid Cards Revised By Big Ten

Still Optimistic Over Chances of Playing.

By TOMMY DEVINE

CHICAGO —(UP)— Optimistic enough to believe they will be able to assemble representative varsity football squads next fall despite war-time enrollment drains, Big Ten athletic directors met today to make a thorough revision of the 1943 schedules.

* * *

While the directors convene for their important business sessions today and tomorrow athletes from conference schools will be settling championships in four sports. The annual indoor track and fencing meets are carded at the University of Chicago and the swimming and wrestling meets at Northwestern.

The original 1943 schedules, crafted two years ago, likely will be scrapped and the entire grid slate re-drawn. The new schedules will be made with a two fold purpose of reducing travel and providing contests for service teams such as the Great Lakes Naval Training station, the Navy Pre-Flight school at Iowa City, Ia., and Camp Grant at Rockford, Ill.

Cancellation of all non-conference games that entail lengthy travel is sought by some Big Ten officials. Such an action would wipe off the slate such contests as Northwestern vs. Colorado; Indiana vs. Nebraska, Ohio State vs. Missouri and Illinois vs. Pittsburgh. Notre Dame's games with Illinois, Northwestern, Wisconsin and Michigan would not be affected however.

Conference games which require over-night Pullman jumps also may be banned.

On the actual competitive front Michigan is favored to win two championships, Chicago one and either Illinois or Purdue the other.

The Wolverines are the choice in track and swimming, with Chicago favored in fencing and Illinois and Purdue rated tops in wrestling.

Jack of All Sport Entered

But Illinois Trackman Proves Master of None.

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO —(UP)— A tall wiry youth, Herbert Matter, was among 200 athletes gathered in Chicago today for the Big Ten indoor track meet.

"I don't look for the kid to place first in a single event," said Matter's coach, Leo Johnson of Illinois. "Yet he's the greatest iron man athlete in the country and both Assistant Coach Harold Osborn and myself believe he's the best all-round athlete ever turned out at the University of Illinois."

It seems Matter, a 6-foot-2-inch, 155-pound junior, is good in all sports but master of none, taking part in so many he can't keep up with the seasons. In January he had to leave the Illinois basketball squad to begin practice for track, his first love. He is a fine swimmer and golfer, but gives up varsity competition in each for track.

* * *

In four dual meets this season Matter took a couple of deep breaths and won 13 first places, five second and one third. He competed in six events: low hurdles, broad jump, pole vault, high jump, sprint and shot put.

Coach Johnson has entered him in only four events for the big indoor competition.

The first thing you notice about this willowy lad is a strapped-up thumb.

"It's pretty hard to vault with it," he confessed. "I hurt it broad jumping. I held up my thumb too high while leaping and jammed it against an iron staircase overhead."

OLD JACK JOHNSON RETURNING TO RING

LOS ANGELES —(UP)— Jack Johnson, 64-year-old former world's heavyweight boxing champion, is returning to the ring—if he can pass a physical examination.

The big negro who lifted the title from Jim Jeffries in 1910 plans a series of exhibition matches, and said he is confident of his physical fitness.

The California Athletic commission specified his bouts can be no more than three rounds, of two minutes each, against approved opponents.

New Twist For Murder

Bare-Hand Killing Methods Explained.

NEW YORK —(INS)— A new method of fighting, combining everything from primitive, rough and tumble fighting and Jap judo to the latest Commando tactics is being taught to the men of the army air forces.

How a soldier who has lost his weapons in battle may with his bare hands quickly kill his enemy in hand to hand fighting is one of the features of the course.

Though some of the refinements of the method are something of a secret weapon of the army a general outline of the plan has been released for publication by the Public Relations office of the First air force.

This method has been perfected by Brooks Mendell, a New York physical educator. Classes have been underway for some weeks for non-commissioned officers and then enlisted men here. Men so trained will themselves become trainers at various centers and camps of the air forces. It is planned to extend the system to other services and civilian groups.

Mendell, a former Syracuse university athlete, is a man of medium height, compactly and powerfully constructed. He moves with great speed and doesn't seem to need the use of great strength to accomplish his purpose.

Movements of the body, such as weaving, feinting, designed to throw the enemy off balance, and to take advantage of his loss of balance, are taught.

Mendell is also teaching a course designed to help pilots and crews of battleplanes. These men are taught how to control muscular reflexes when a plane is thrown upside down or in other ways out of normal flying position, how to the best possible effect to use one arm or leg if one or more limbs should be shot out of action.

Size of opponents doesn't mean a thing. As in jiu-jitsu and judo the opponent's strength is used against himself. In some ways the smaller man has the advantage. Control of the physical center of balance comes more readily to the man built closer to the ground and he is usually quicker of movement than the larger man.

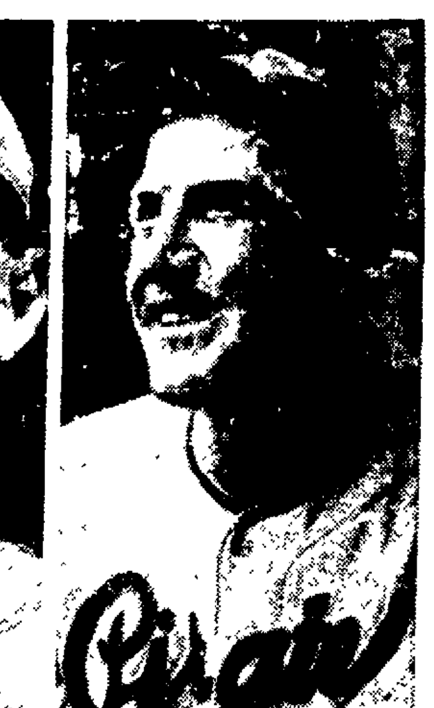
Mendell, who has done some boxing, does not rely too much on the fist, which as every fighter knows is easily damaged by its own blow.

"The hand is a many-sided blade," he explains. "The Japs use the inside edge in their jiu-jitsu. We Americans use the closed fist, as in boxing. But I teach not only the use of the fist and the inside edge but the outside, the half-open fist (in which the middle knuckles come into play) the tips of the fingers—and as in football, straight arm the heel of the hand."

This all adds up to bad news for the Japs and the Germans.

Traynor Ends Pirate Career

Pie Traynor . . . rookie in '21



Pie Traynor . . . manager

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Sports Editor.

IT WASN'T MUCH of a piece—only a few lines in the paper—but the announcement of the dismissal of Harold Joseph (Pie) Traynor by the Pittsburgh Pirates should be the signal for someone to begin writing the semi-final chapter of the story of a great baseball hero.

For 23 years Pie (he was so named by a grocery clerk because he always asked for pie as the last item on his mother's grocery list) has been a Pittsburgh Pirate—third baseman, manager, farm supervisor and scout.

* * *

The war has ended Pie's career with the Pirates, at least for the moment, since he was dropped from the payroll because of the wartime closing of so many minor leagues. The tip-off came when the official Pittsburgh Pirate roster, among the first to reach sports desks, failed to list that familiar name Harold Joseph Traynor—among the scouts.

Baseball men call Pie one of the "greatest" third basemen of all time. His record speaks for itself.

Seven times the Pittsburgh veteran was named on the league all star team. He holds the league record for third baseman for participating in the most double plays.

As a batter, Pie was one of the best. His major league average was .320, compiled in 17 years' of play at the hot corner. A durable athlete, Pie was a brilliant third sacker and a timely hitter. His best bat mark was .366, made in 1930.

Pie's ability as a baseball teacher was recognized by the Pirate management in June, 1934 when he was picked to manage the club, succeeding George Gibson. As manager, Pie kept his club in the first division, finishing second in 1938 after a brilliant stretch climb. The team dropped to sixth in 1939 and Pie was replaced by Frankie Frisch.

A native of Farmingham, Mass., where he was born on Nov. 11, 1899, Pie broke into pro baseball when he was 21 with Portsmouth of the Virginia league. He made the jump to the majors in the same year, ending the season with Pittsburgh.

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Among the responses to the Phils' bid for free-agent ball players were a letter from a fan who assured them he wouldn't be grabbed by the army because he had only one eye and a call from a gent who offered to improve Danny Litwhiler's batting average at the cost only of a season ticket by playing a banjo in the bleachers while Danny was in the field to "keep him in a good mood" . . . The most unkindest cut, though, was the Cleveland Plain Dealer headline: "Phils now particular; won't hire semi-pros."

IC4A Track Meet Has 400 Entries

NEW YORK—(INS)—The IC4A indoor track championships to be held in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night, will feature approximately 400 athletes from 32 colleges, with records in at least two events placed in jeopardy.

* * *

The mile run, so closely and bitterly contested all season, might see a new mark when the event has run its course. Frank Dixon, New York university freshman who has already taken the Boston and New York A. C. miles, will be running against a blistering field in the IC4A event. Don Burnham, who did 4:10.5 in placing second in the Baxter mile, will force Dixon to the limit.

* * *

Another contestant who will press Dixon is Gerold Karver, Penn State sophomore. Leroy Schwartzkopf, of Yale, is another prime performer in a crowded field of twenty.

Indianapolis Caps Take Fourth Place

(By United Press)

The Indianapolis Caps today had broken a tie for fourth place with Pittsburgh in the American Hockey league by defeating the invading Hornets, 8-0, Thursday night.

The Caps racked up goals in every period, topping their offense with four tallies in the second session.

Buffalo's Bisons made a four-goal rally in the final period to defeat the Reds, 6-4, at Providence.

District Tourney Opens Tonight at Bellevue

Mansfield, Ashland Favored But Tiffin Junior Order Makes Bid.

THEY'LL be banging away at the buckets and backboards at Bellevue tonight, lifting the lid on the annual district high school basketball tournament.

Ashland and Mansfield have been generally tabbed by the dopesters as tournament favorites, and while both the A's and Tygers have drawn first round byes, Ashland meets Willard tonight at 9:30 and should have no difficulty jumping into the third round.

Mansfield doesn't see action until tomorrow night at 9:30 when the Tygers take on the winner of the Fremont-Norwalk game, and the only fear Coach Vern Hoffman will have here will be overconfidence by his Mansfield hoopsters.

The Tygers won both at Fremont and at Norwalk during the season, but not by scores that should produce overconfidence, beating Fremont 42-37 and Norwalk 38-36.

First game for the Tygers should be their toughest test on the road to the finals, if they get that far. Other semi-finalist in their bracket will be the winner of the Port Clinton-Shelby game tomorrow night at 8:15.

There's a dark horse in the Ashland bracket, probably faced by the A's in the semi-finals. That's Tiffin Junior Order, with one of the best teams in the home's history. Winner of tonight's 7 o'clock game between Tiffin Columbian and Bellevue will meet Junior Order tomorrow night at 7.

Records of the district teams are:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Junior Order	10	2	.833
Ashland	11	3	.786
Port Clinton	11	3	.786
Columbian	10	5	.667

Senior League Ends In Tie

Rex Billiards and Hunts Meet In Play-off.

Senior basketball league at Friendly House wound up its second half schedule last night with Rex Billiards and Hunt's News tied for first place, and scheduled to tangle in a playoff game next Thursday night.

Hunts took a 7-4 overtime edge to defeat Boston Grocery 52-49, while the Billiards were nosed out 45-43 by Sferro Lunch in last night's game.

It took a fourth quarter rally to keep Hunts in the running, Boston taking a 10-9 edge at the quarter, and boosting it to 22-19 at the half, and 42-33 at the third quarter. Hunts rolled up a 12-3 last quarter count to tie the score at 45-45.

* * *

Louis Nameth tallied 20 points and Bosko 18 for the winners, while J. Carbetta led the losers with 16.

* * *

Tolles tallied 25 points to pace Sferros in their two-point victory over the Billiards. Sferros led 11-7 at the quarter, but Billiards tied it up at 19-19 at the half. Sferros went out in front again 35-33 in the third quarter and each team tallied 10 points in the finale.

New Fistic Stars Needed

Pittsburgh Leather Pushers Lose Laurels.

PITTSBURGH —(INS)— Pittsburgh, a city that, until recently, could boast of five boxing champions at the same time, is combing the fistic alleys in search of a new crop.

It wasn't long ago that this district figuratively could push out its chest and proudly exclaim: "This is the city of world champs." But that's only a pleasant memory now.

Billy Conn, light heavyweight; Billy Soose, middleweight; Fritzie Zivic, welterweight; Sammy Angott, lightweight, and Jackie Wilson, featherweight, all wore the "purple" at the same time and all of them were real champions.

But the royal robes slipped and the crowns fell one by one, and today Pittsburgh boxing fans, managers and promoters are concentrating on developing a new crop of champs.

Conn's crown was the first to slip from his curly locks but that was a voluntary gesture. Billy wanted to slug it out with the heavies and did alright too until he met a guy named Joe Louis. Billy Soose, the former Penn State star, reached the top as a middleweight, but retired to the more lucrative lightheavyweight division.

Zivic lost his welter title in a torrid bout with Red Cochrane, Angott retired undefeated because of bad hands but recently announced his return to the ring, and Jackie Wilson dropped his feather crown to Jackie Callura.

Three of the boys, Conn, Soose and Angott, gave up their titles while undefeated and Zivic made partial amends by whipping the tar out of Sailor Red Cochrane in a return non-title bout.

Prospect Five Finally Loses

Still Holds Lead In Southern Cage Loop.

Prospect school cagers dropped their first basketball defeat of the season yesterday, nosed out by Brinkerhoff, 17-15, but retained first place in the Southern grade school league by a one-game margin over the Brinks.

Prospect took a 14-5 first half lead, but went into a scoring tailspin with only one point in the second half. Brinkerhoff scoring was evenly distributed while Weaver led Prospect with eight points.

With both teams going scoreless in the third quarter, Hedges came back with a 7-1 margin in the final period to defeat Carpenter 11-8. Newman had an easy time with West Fifth, 14-3.

The roblem could be postponed iough Charlotte had said she were smart, she would child at once Charlotte o said, 'If Bill and his wife d a child, you wouldn't be ig him And remember, you haven't been mar- fore."

as five o'clock" Time to she thought and to have things taken away and ie maid come up and fix d in the adjoining room had complained to Bill that the maid disturbed her too early in the morning It was provincial, the maid's almost knocking down the door at ten in the morning

When Bill came, he found her sitting on the divan She was wearing a black chiffon dinner frock with a voluminous skirt His heart seemed to turn over . . . Tall, his shoulders broad in the brown business suit his face and lean jaw tanned by the Georgia sun, his eyes very blue, his dark hair slightly disheveled Bill contemplated his second wife He loved her so that his love made him ache when he looked at her She was so perfect, sitting there quietly in the dimly lighted room waiting for him—the luckiest man in the world How had he managed it? How could she love anyone as insignificant as he? And she was his . . . All that perfection and poise and grace were for him It did not occur to him that Carol had always waited too, her heart in her eyes and that when she lifted her arms to him she was also a thing of beauty

He had thought little of Carol until he had returned home But the familiar surroundings had caused her to blow like an unwelcome draft through his mind, lingering only long enough for him to make excuses for himself and occasionally to fight off his shame It was unfortunate, it was hellish, what he had done to her, but wasn't she young and attractive? There would be someone else . . . They had married so young Carol would be happy again Sure Carol would be all right Divorces happened every day It was life . . . Love was life

Evelyn stretched forth her long fingers Bill went to her, fearful lest his kiss and embrace had hurt her Would he ever love her enough?

'Did you miss me, Bill?" Holding his hand more pleased by his reverent devotion than in love with him she said, I had a visitor today Mrs Kelly"

Freda! . . . Freda had called on Evelyn Bill frowned That was odd Freda was Carol's friend But a second later he thought, Freda is a swell person She came because, even though she is Carol's friend, she wanted to make Evelyn welcome

'Freda" he said You liked her didn't you? Ian, her husband is swell too" Then "I missed you today I—I wish it could go on the way it was at Sea Island" He shook his head and smiled 'Tough day I don't want to think about it I want to think about you Evelyn and look at you and talk to you You're so wonderful' He took her hand and kissed it 'Would you like to go out to dinner tonight or have it sent up again? We could go to the club"

'Oh Bill I'd love that!'

"This is an awful hole for you to be in You haven't been used to anything like this I'll call a real estate man first thing tomorrow and have him take you around to look at houses'

'There's no hurry We've lots of time" Finding a house and furnishing it entailed a lot of work

"But it isn't fair to you I want to give you everything"

'You're so sweet, Bill But—but hadn't you better dress? I'll call for the cocktails'

"Great!" Leaning over, he kissed her again 'I love you . . . I love you, darling I think if anything ever happened to us it would . . . it would kill me"

Evelyn thought smiling her enigmatic smile as she touched his hair, No Bill it would kill Charlotte and Dick '

Carol had been home a week and everything had been done Now there was nothing to do and no one for whom to wait She thought of the long afternoon stretching ahead as she came out of the dining room after luncheon and went into the living room It was so quiet in the apartment Only the grandfather clock in the foyer spoke to her

Should she read? New books had come in her absence Should she telephone? Heretofore she had always longed for a free afternoon but then everything had centered around Bill Everything had been done for his needs and desires and comforts The grandfather clock had been a graceful sentinel reminding her of hours to spare or hours to hurry before Bill came or went The schedule of living had revolved about him

Now there was no schedule Now there was no planned time to rise or eat or go to bed Now all her time was hers But though her inner life had fallen into complete disorder she knew that she must maintain a rigid outer order in her appearance, in her home and in her relationship with other people Bill's tidiness and his punctuality would be carried on even in a life without him

Going to the Sheraton coffee table, she took a cigaret and lighted it, thinking, "These first weeks will be the worst And these first nights . . . When the lights are out, I feel as if I'm sleeping with a ghost"

Bill was a bridegroom again. It would have been funny if it hadn't hurt so much, Bill, thirty, was too old to be a bridegroom Honeymoons were for boys and girls, intensely in love, planning an intertwined life Carol thought 'Evelyn is Mrs Sturtevant now She is the real Mrs Sturtevant I'm only allowed to go on using his name"

She had had a letter from her father and as she read it she had seen a thin nervous, greying man By his letters she knew that time had softened him and that ten years ago his letter would have been explosive Now it was filled with platitudes and an invitation to Florida But no doubt on a patio shaded by palms the problem of a daughter to whom he had never been close seemed very remote indeed Carol was glad that he had at last found his niche

She had called on Bill's mother a stout motherly little woman and had sat in the crowded living room of the big frame house in the unfashionable section of town, hearing Mrs Sturtevant's weeping hearing her say 'I still don't want this to make any difference between us, Carol I've always loved you as my own daughter and I want you to come to see me

"It put me in bed what happened I don't know what came over Bill I just don't understand it You raise children and try to teach them the right things and send them to church and then they do things you just can't understand Everybody thought you were so happy

Carol did not tell Bill's mother that you could also live with a man for several years and then not understand him . . . Perhaps one of the greatest mistakes you ever make is in trying to understand other people . . . Mrs Sturtevant did not say whether Bill and Evelyn had been to see her

Presently the telephone screamed through the silent apartment Carol answered it in her bedroom

It was Scott's deep slow amiable voice that said 'Hi, Carol How are you?"

She had said it so often! "I'm perfectly fine How are you?"

'Never better How's about you and I going out to the club tonight? If Freda and Ian are going we could make it a foursome for dinner I'll call them" And when she hesitated he said, "Oh, come on Please '

STOCK PRICES DIP DOWNWARD AFTER RALLY

Net Operating Income of Railroads Jumps 57 Per Cent in Year.

By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Stock prices took a lower slant in early dealings today on the heels of yesterday's last-minute weakness, although there was scattered resistance.

Off fractionally at the start were, among other things, Bethhem, U. S. Steel, United Aircraft, J. I. Case and American Smelting. Rails held up.

On the side of the carriers was an interstate commerce commission tabulation showing net operating income of 136 class 1 railroads for January up 57.5 per cent from January of a year ago at $105,304,320 before fixed charges. Total revenue was up 39.7 per cent at $671,334,151.

GRANDMOTHER 'FIGHTS' TOO

SAN DIEGO, Cal. (U.P.) When her three grandsons enlisted in aviation bombing squadrons, their grandmother, Mrs. Hattie Jenkins, went to work for the Consolidated Aircraft Corp. to help build bombers for them. She had served as a nurse in World War I, but decided that was too "soft" for the grandmother of bombers in the war.

DECLARES PRESS WAR ESSENTIAL

Rep. Halleck Asserts Papers Should Be Considered Vital Industry.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Rep. Charles A. Halleck, R., Ind., told the house today that the press of the nation "must be classed as an essential war industry and given consideration as such."

The list of newspaper accomplishments in the war effort is endless, Halleck said. He suggested that some of the paper used by government bureaucrats could "more properly" be allotted to newspapers which have been cut 10 per cent.

"Let us not tolerate any carelessness and groundless opinions on the part of those who drafted these regulations . . . and who threaten further curtailment in the amounts of paper which newspapers can use," he declared.

"If there are some whose animosity leads them to attempt to destroy the newspapers which stand between them and their goal, let us seek them out and render them harmless.

"For when you destroy the newspapers, you destroy one of the most effective internal implements of war and of peace which this nation possesses."

HEAR DIM-OUT RULES MAPPED

Merchants Told About Tests To Be Made in City By CD During Next Week.

Every commercial business in Mansfield was represented at a conference this morning in the Chamber of Commerce assembly room when Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, civilian defense coordinator, explained the requirements of next week's test dimouts.

"It was a successful meeting, revealing a great interest in protective programs," Judge Kalbfleisch declared. "Every merchant in Mansfield apparently is wholeheartedly going along with the OCD program."

Judge Kalbfleisch and Police Captain Jesse Schwab, defense commander of protective units, explained dimout regulations. Window display lights must be turned off during the sectional test including the store or office building. Any assembly room light kept burning must be shielded to prevent it being seen from the outside.

The Park avenue and Main street sectional divisions apply to the directional side of the thoroughfares, Judge Kalbfleisch said. In the first dimout at 9 p. m. Monday embracing the area south of Park avenue west and west of South Main street only the structures on the south side of Park avenue and the west side of Main street will be dimmed out.

On Tuesday night the north side of Park avenue and west side of North Main street will comply; on Wednesday night the south side of Park avenue east and the east side of Main street; on Thursday night the north side of Park avenue east and the east side of Main street. Only the areas within the corporate limits will be dimmed out.

Air raid wardens, messengers and auxiliary police are the only civilian defense units which will mobolize on the long steady tone of the sirens at 9 p. m. The rising-and-falling alert will follow in a few minutes with a steadily-toned "all clear" signal in about 20 minutes.

OPA Frees More Machinery for County Farmers

With the year's quotas of some types of farm machinery already exhausted in Richland county, the county farm machinery ration board announced today that the OPA had released 18 more tractor-drawn plows and three more manure spreaders for sale during the year.

The annual quota of plows was increased from 37 to 55 and the number of manure spreaders available was boosted from 10 to 13. Increases in other types of machinery, especially combines, corn pickers, and hay balers, are anticipated by the county ration board.

Farmers have already received orders to purchase all of the 31 tractor cultivators and 14 hammermills allotted the county. Eight applications to buy corn planters have been approved. The county was allocated 14 planters.

The quota of 10 farm wagons seems to be adequate, board members said, since only two applications for wagons have been received by the board.

The county's quota permit the purchase of 32 tractors, 27 disc harrows, and 10 grain drills.

Waives Hearing — Elva I. DeVole, Columbus, posted $16.30 and signed a waiver in municipal court this morning on charges of speeding on U. S. Route 42 yesterday afternoon, state patrolmen reported.

Waitress Ill — Police Lieutenant Carl J. Kalstern and Patrolman Don Mitchell yesterday took Pearl Wageman, 238½ North Main street, to General hospital after she had been stricken by illness while working at the Green Leaf cafe, North Main street.

Stolen Dog Seen — Police were told late yesterday by a pedestrian that he had seen a shabbily dressed man leading a mackinaw-blanketed fox terrier puppy reported missing Tuesday from the home of Mrs. R. E. Burns, 60 South Weldon avenue. The puppy reportedly is valuable.

McGregor Better — Congressman J. Harry McGregor of the 17th district, who underwent a major operation in Washington about a month ago, continues to improve, but he will not be able to return to his office for several weeks, a report from his secretary said today.

Ration Office Hours — Charles Beelman, chairman of the Richland county war price and rationing board, said today that numerous calls are received inquiring office hours. They are 8:30 a. m., to 5:30 p. m., on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays. On Wednesday the ration board office closes at 12 noon.

Hear Marine — Kiwanis club members heard Corp. Foye Charles, Mansfield marine, recently returned from Guadalcanal, tell of his experiences on the embattled island, at their meeting yesterday noon at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. President H. H. Schettler gave a report on the book collection for men in service.

Hours Extended—The county treasurer's office at the courthouse will remain open until 4 p. m. Saturday for the convenience of property owners who have difficulty finding any other time to pay their taxes, Treasurer Charles Payne said. Real estate tax payments today had reached $443,717 of a total current tax charge of $711,822 for the first half of the year. Tax books close Wednesday.

Glattke Honored—Current issue of the "New Day" publication of Ohio State Reformatory carries a tribute to Superintendent Arthur L. Glattke who last Monday completed eight years as head of the institution. Prior to his appointment here Glattke was athletic director of Libbey high school in Toledo.

List Totals 68—When prospective members of the three new Girl Scout troops at Western avenue school with their mothers attended a preliminary meeting at the school yesterday, 68 names of prospective members were read by Miss Eleanor Bond, executive director. There will be two brownie troops composed of 17 and 21 girls between the ages of seven and ten, and an intermediate troop of 27 between the ages of 10 and 14.

Takes New Post—Mary Hughes, 244 Marion avenue, soon will begin her duties as bookkeeper of the sanitary sewer department in the city finance offices. Miss Hughes will take the post vacated by Ray Hines who steps up to the desk vacated by the resignation Tuesday of Charles Anglin, now with Westinghouse. She formerly had been employed in the waterworks office and recently as office secretary of the Visiting Nurses' associaton.

Gets Cash, Food—A hungry thief who was also dry obtained, among other things, $2 in cash when he prowled the home of Mrs. Stanley Cervinski, 291 Spring street, during the family absence early last night. After Joe Hammer, 296 Spring street, had notified police for his neighbor, she told Lieut. Carl J. Kalstein and Patrolman Realiff Hout that an intruder had eaten several hamburger patties left on the kitchen table.

Bellville Quota Raised — With 720 abdominal dressings completed after 508 hours work by 10 women this week, the Bellville Red Cross group received word yesterday that their March quota would be 1,100 dressings, according to co-chairmen Mrs. K. M. Wilson and Mrs. J. B. Kochheiser. The Bellville women sew every day except Sunday at the Red Cross headquarters in the Wilson building.

Postal Warning — Employes of the Mansfield postoffice today passed on to the public a warning issued by the third assistant postmaster general concerning proper addressing of soldier mail. Many letters go to the dead letter office daily, the bulletin reported, because of incomplete addresses. Postal clerks are asked to return letters to the senders when they know the addresses is incorrect or incomplete.

ADD FRACTIONS TO WIDE GAINS ON STOCK LIST

Large Blocks of Leaders Are Transferred on Active Opening Trade.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Stocks added fractionally to the previous session's broad gains in today's early dealings.

Transfers of a fair number of leaders in large blocks provided an active opening. In the higher group at the start were American Telephone, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Western Union, United Aircraft and Coca Cola.

In Wall Street boardrooms corporate dividend prospects were seen as altered somewhat by the supreme court's recent decision holding non-taxable common stock dividends distributed by Standard Oil company, (N-J) in 1939. Some sources suggested that requirements for increased cash for expansion, inventories and taxes might, in view of the court's ruling, lead numerous companies to pay dividends in stock rather than cash.

"It is our belief that a customer prefers to know quickly whether he's going to be able to buy any liquor. He gets the answer quickly by just trying the door."

Fisher's new directives had not been received by Mansfield store managers, but were outlined today in statements he made to the Associated Press in Columbus.

Poling said it was likely that he may receive copies of the order either this afternoon or tomorrow.

Besides his system of staggered sales during the day announced last week as a means of keeping liquor out of illegitimate or possible "bootleg" channels, Poling today said that persons in need of liquor for medicinal purposes will be able to purchase it at the store providing they present a written statement from a physician and providing there is whisky in the store to fill the order.

Kearns Company Among 120 Accused of Violating Meat Regulations.

Thousands of Mansfield and Richland county housewives were told today by the Office of Price Administration exactly how hard the price of pork can hit their pocketbooks on and after April 1.

Striking at the core of the black market operator's existence, exorbitant illegal profits, OPA's new retail pork price ceilings are designed to assure consumers of a "fair share at a fair price" of one of the basic foods in America's diet.

The maximum pound price schedule to go into effect April 1 is divided for small independent dealers and chain store or large independent dealers. Here's the scale for zone 7, which includes Ohio and parts of West Virginia.

Small Independents

Sliced bacon, grade A, 47 cents.

$15,449 TOTAL SPURS WORKERS IN FUND DRIVE

100 Per Cent Reports Begin To Arrive at Red Cross Headquarters.

Mansfield's Red Cross war fund drive got into high gear yesterday with reports today showing an accumulated total of $15,449 toward the city's quota of $45,500.

Approximately $7,600 of this amount was collected yesterday when several firms joined the 100 per cent employe participation honor list and incomplete returns were reported by four major plants.

Shelby workers reported yesterday they had long since passed the half-way mark in their campaign to raise $10,500 by the end of this week. Red Cross stickers in windows of many rural homes and smaller towns were the only evidence so far that the rural areas were being contacted since none of the canvassers had reported. Several chairmen, however, had indicated substantial results.

After a slow start with only scattered reports having been made in Mansfield the figure until yesterday - - a mere $1,450 - - had been anything but gratifying. L. W. Birch, chairman of the county campaign and city workers appealed yesterday for more complete statistics of the workers' progress in the drive which is hoped will net a county total of $59,000 by March 15.

Lumbermens Insurance company, which has boasted 100 per cent donations by employes for the past six years, contributed two and one half times its quota yesterday.

Honor roll firms, where all employes contributed include: Y. W. C. A., Tracy and Massa Insurance-Holibaugh and Wolfe Insurance, Harring's Meat Market D. A. Meese Insurance, Althouse and Jones, Architects, Milady Beauty Salon, the City Building including general office, waterworks office and repair department, municipal court and city county health office, and offices of Drs. Son Prisoner of Japanese, Loudonville Parents Told

Ever since they received a message from the war department a year ago informing them their son, Ervin, is "missing in action," Mr. and Mrs. Urban Peters, of Loudonville, clug to the hope that he was still alive.

Today they learned that Ervin, a fireman in the U. S. navy, is apparently alive, but is a prisoner of the Japs and is held in a prison camp near Tokyo.

At least that is what a message sent by short-wave radio from Tokyo said. It was picked up by J. A. Bahl, of Chicago, and Bahl immediately dispatched the message to Ervin's parents.

Apparently broadcast by Ervin, himself, the message as picked up by Bahl said:

"I'm Ervin E. Peters, 19, and if anyone hears this please send word to my mother in Loudonville, Ohio."

Then followed the word he wanted to send to his mother: "Dear Mom, I am safe and well, and I am a prisoner in Tokyo, Japan, and I thought I could ease your aching heart, and hope our family circle will be together again soon."

The news was received by Bahl at 6:15 p. m. Tuesday, and he immediately wired the boy's parents.

Mrs. Peters broke into tears when she read the message. "I knew nothing could happen to my boy," she said.

Permission for prisoners to broadcast messages home has been allowed by the Japanese for propaganda reasons. Usually such broadcasts are preceded by announcements that the prisoners are "well treated and happy."

BABY SURVIVES

Born 5 Minutes After Death of Mother Through Operation.

CLEVELAND — (INS) — A five-and-a-half pound baby boy today is thriving normally in a St. Luke's hospital incubator after being born by caesarian operation five minutes after his mother's death.

Hospital officials were reluctant to reveal the name of the 28-year-old physician who performed the operation by permission of the father, Eugene Greenbaum, a bank teller, who was with his wife when she died.

The infant was placed in the incubator only because of its premature birth. Dr. Carter said the baby was normal in every respect and would probably be removed to his home in two or three days.

TELL HORRORS OF WORST U. S. SEA DISASTER

Survivors Reveal Ships Hit at Night Without Warning When 850 Lost Lives.

(By International News Service)

BOSTON, Mass. — Saved from death in the freezing waters of the turbulent North Atlantic, survivors from one of two ships sent to the bottom in one of the worst of America's sea tragedies, today gave accounts of their harrowing experiences.

Struck without warning in the middle of an overcast night, both vessels foundered within minutes after they were attacked in a twin torpedoing which took the lives of 850 Americans.

Men who followed the sea for the most of their lives were among those saved and even they quavered as they recited frantic efforts to locate shipmates whose cries of help they heard coming from inky black waters.

Neither of the vessels were identified by name but the crew of one apparently suffered the heaviest casualties. Of a complement of 904, it was reported that 678 were missing and hence presumed to be dead.

Said Howard W. Beach, 32, of Savannah, Ga: "Conditions caused by the explosion made it impossible for a great many men below decks to escape."

The attacks, performed in true Axis fashion, were without warning and the torpedo ripped into the side of the vessel slightly to the aft of midship. An undetermined number were killed by the blast and countless others were trapped below as the ship turned on its side, topdeck perpendicular to the water and plunged to the bottom within a few minutes.

Split seconds, apparently meant the difference between life and death as attested by Second Offi-

TALLIES LOSSES

Britain Says 416 Warships Sunk, But Navy's Stronger.

LONDON —(AP)— Britain has lost 416 warships during the war, Lord Bruntisfield, parliamentary secretary to the admiralty, told the house of lords yesterday in reply to a question.

A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, said yesterday, however, the Royal Navy was much stronger than a year ago.

Lord Bruntisfield gave this breakdown of losses: 44 submarines, five capital ships, seven aircraft carriers, 25 cruisers, 14 armed merchant cruisers, 94 destroyers, 14 corvettes, one monitor, eight sloops, 22 minesweepers, 156 trawlers, 14 drifters, one minelayer, three yachts, five gunboats and three cutters.

SENATE PANEL ASKS FARMERS BE DEFERRED

Declares Equaling of 1942 Food Output Record Almost Hopeless.

INACTION ATTACKED

Wickard Reported Increasingly Alarmed Over Lack of Rural Labor.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The senate military affairs committee reported today that the prospect for a food crop this year as large as 1942's "is almost hopeless of realization."

In a report urging passage of the Bankhead bill to defer farm workers from military service, the committee said that Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard "is increasingly alarmed about the inability to get enough farm labor to reach goals established for farm production this year.

Wickard "gets more alarmed day by day as a result of additional information and developments in the matter of farm labor," the report added.

Before announcing its conclusions the committee had studied a special report by Col. Lewis Sanders of the selective service bureau who warned that:

1. The time has come to convert agriculture to the same war production basis as industry to avert hunger at home and unnecessary casualties on the battle fronts.

2. Talk about labor shortages, food riots and starvation must be supplanted with action because too little has been done and it is getting late.

The committee said that the Tydings amendment to the selective service act, granting exemptions to essential farm workers, has been "so circumscribed by red tape" in its administration that "it did not accomplish the desired result."

At the same time, the committee declared, "farm workers were lured from the farms by the attractive wages and short hours and better living conditions offered by war plants."

"It is evident that if something is not done soon to restrain the movement away from farms, the

Mead to Retire April 1 as Ohio Fuel Gas Manager

Retirement of William C. Mead on April 1 as district manager of the Ohio Fuel Gas company in Mansfield was announced today by company officials. He will be succeeded by G. K. Sch[illegible]ler, now the firm's district manager at Findlay.

Mead, who has been with the Ohio Fuel Gas company for 29 years and Mansfield district manager since 1930, is leaving the post because of ill health. He underwent an eye operation in a Columbus hospital several weeks ago and has been unable to return to his office.

Associated with the gas company since 1914 when he began as a clerk in the Circleville office, Mead came to Mansfield in 1920. He is a member of the board of education and has been active in welfare work for crippled children. He is a member of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce, and a past president of the Rotary club.

He is a veteran of World War I and served 18 months overseas. He is a member of the American Legion in Mansfield and chairman of the Citizens Naval Procurement committee in the Mansfield area.

The Mansfield district office of the Ohio Fuel Gas company also serves Marion, Bucyrus, Willard, Ashland, Shelby, Galion, Crestline and other towns in the Mansfield area.

Push Foe Back In Russia and North Tunisia

Yanks, British Step Up Air Offensive In North Africa as RAF Hammers Germany for Ninth Night; Reds Shaping New Pincers Drive.

(By Associated Press)

Forty-ton Churchill tanks of the British First army were reported today to have thrown the Germans out of Sed Jenane, about 40 miles west of Bizerte in northern Tunisia, as the Allied air forces mounted a sweeping offensive in evident preparation for bigger things to come.

On the Russian front the Red army smashed one German defense position after another northwest of Moscow and captured 52 towns and villages, while to the south its drive northwest of Karkov was shaping the second arm of a pincers, now spread 250 miles apart, to flatten out the huge German central salient.

For the ninth successive night the RAF carried on its mighty aerial hammering of western Germany.

Field reports at Allied headquarters in North Africa said the British tanks threw the Germans out of Sed Jenane, a little village 12 miles south of the sea on the Mateur-Tabarka road, and after stiff street fighting held Col. Gen. Jurgen von Arnim's forces in check.

In central Tunisia American troops, reported yesterday within three miles of Faid pass, starting point of Marshal Erwin Rommel's recent offensive, were consolidating their positions, an Allied communique announced.

Farther south, French forces occupied Nefta, near the northwestern end of the Chott Djerid, a salt lake, and pushed on toward Gafsa, 60 miles to the east, the communique said. The Fighting French said their troops had joined Gen. Henri Giraud's Frenchmen in the action threatening the rear of the Mareth line.

Allied patrols were officially described as "very active" before the Mareth line, and dispatches from advanced bases in Tripolitania hinted the Allied aerial offensive was in preparation for a fresh plunge by Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery's British Eighth army.

Red nosed Warhawks from the east joined with Flying Fortresses and Lightnings from the west to put on an American blasting of Axis airfields from one end of Tunisia to the other in an effort to knock out the enemy's air power.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The navy announced today that American planes bombed Japanese positions at Kiska in the North Pacific and four enemy bases in the Solomons while the Japs retaliated with a light raid on Henderson airfield on Guadalcanal.

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA — Airmen of the Southwest Pacific command, including American, British, Dutch and Australian fliers, put the finishing touches to the destruction of a Japanese convoy of 22 ships by sinking two battered destroyers yesterday and raised to 82 the number of enemy planes shot out of action, an Allied communique said today.

Thus in three days, 12 transports and 10 cruisers or destroyers were sunk, 15,000 Japanese troops and several thousand seamen were killed, 82 enemy planes were destroyed or badly damaged and the attempt to

State Liquor Department Ends Year With $6,000,000 Surplus.

COLUMBUS —(UP)— The state liquor department reported in a financial statement today that it ended the year with a surplus of $6,988,282 after turning over $13,500,000 of profits into the state treasury in 1942.

The surplus was almost $878,000 greater than at the end of 1941. The 1912 profits made available for general state expenses those of 1911 by $5,135,000.

In addition to the profits, the department paid $10 778 504 in gallonage taxes into the general revenue fund for state purposes and collected more than $6,000,000 in liquor permit fees for local governments.

State Liquor Store Employes Number to Be Cut.

COLUMBUS — (UP) — Acting State Liquor Director Don A. Fisher announced today the number of wholesale and retail employes in state liquor stores will be "materially reduced" shortly after a Hamilton county store manager resigned under fire for alleged illegal sales.

The department expected to uncover evidence of widespread "back door" sales in retail outlets in all parts of the state, Fisher said.

Guard All London Raid Shelters as Panic Kills 178

LONDON —(AP)— Two constables were assigned to the entrances of all deep subway shelters today and other precautions were announced as officials investigated the London shelter disaster Wednesday night in which 178 persons were suffocated or crushed to death and at least 60 others injured during a German air raid.

The ministry of home security summoned all regional and local air raid protection officials to a conference and King George VI ordered a separate inquiry into the tragedy which developed when a middle-aged woman with a baby and a bundle fell on the crowded flight of steps and a pushing crowd piled up about her.

The woman was rescued from the pile but her baby was suffocated.

The installation of extra lights at entrances and immediately within shelters has been ordered, and middle rails will be constructed to divide stairways leading down into shelters.

County Population Up 585; War Areas Gaining Thousands

Richland county's population increased 585, or eight-tenths of one per cent. from 1940 to May 1, 942, while Marion and Erie counties and other Ohio war activity centers showed great increases in the same period, civilian population estimates released by the bureau of census showed today.

The figures, compiled largely on the basis of sugar rationing registrations, placed the Richland county population at 74,438 last May 1 as compared with 73,853 on April 1, 1940.

Richland county was classed as a semi-metropolitan area with the city and rural populations fairly even. Metropolitan districts, particularly those with a large number of war plants, showed gains in most sections of the state. Rural areas generally lost population in the wartime shift to busy industrial centers.

While Richland county was picking up a few civilian workers, arion county's increase was 583 with a total population of ,481. Erie county (Sandusky),

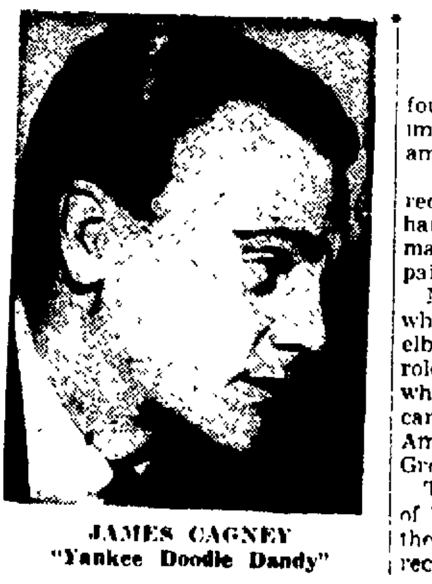
Garson, Cagney Win Filmdom's Prized Oscars



JAMES CAGNEY
"Yankee Doodle Dandy"

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN, UP Hollywood Correspondent.

HOLLYWOOD—A weeping Greer Garson, triumphant on her fourth try, walked off early today with the Motion Picture Academy's imitation imitation-gold statuette symbolic of her rise to first place among Hollywood's movie actresses.

"I feel—yes, I feel just like Alice in Wonderland," sobbed the red-haired Irish star as last year's academy winner, Joan Fontaine, handed her the coveted statuette, made this year of plastic and painted gold-colored.

Miss Garson won the prize, while 1,300 movie makers bumped elbows in their applause for her role in "Mrs. Miniver," a picture which won most of the other Oscars standing on the table in the Ambassador hotel's Cocoanut Grove.

The film itself was judged best of 1942. William Wyler, now with the American Air Force in Europe, received the prize for directing it, while Teresa Wright, who played in support of Miss Garson, took the best secondary actress plum. The photographer and the writers of "Mrs. Miniver" also won awards.

Only non-Miniver prize winners among the top-notchers were James Cagney, named best actor for his work in "Yankee Doodle Dandy," and Van Heflin, who got the statue as best sup-where was bombed, and four ships were sunk in a night bombing of enemy convoys in the Sicilian straits.

The Italians announced Naples, Salerno and San Vitaliano, where six persons were killed, were bombed by the Allies, but claimed counterblows at the Allied ports of Bougie and Phillippeville.

Soviet newspapers said the Germans were in retreat and that Red soldiers were pouring across a river, probably the upper Dneiper, as they stormed southwest and west of the captured fortress of Rzhev, 130 miles northwest of Moscow.

Fifty-two more towns and villages were captured and fresh gains up to six miles were scored by the Russians as they drove westward and southwestward from the captured fortress of Rzhev, 130 miles northwest of Moscow, the Soviet midday communique announced.

They already had cleared the Moscow-Velikie Luki railway, a 230-mile stretch of line, with capture of Olenino, 35 miles west of Rzhev, and their onrush was rapidly embracing Gzhatsk, 100 miles west of Moscow, and Vyazma, 125 miles west of the capital, in a tight grasp.

The clearing of the railway to Velikie Luki promised to facilitate possible Russian plans for a powerful offensive effort to clear the whole German salient which reaches east of Smolensk and perhaps pierce German defenses to the Baltic.

Coupled with these advances and some successes farther to the northwest in the Lake Ilmen sector was the ground-gaining rush of the Red army northwest of Kharkov to the south, where 6,000 Germans were reported killed at Lgov.

Last night's Moscow communique announced the capture of Sevsk, 75 miles south of Bryansk where the Russian forces had gained 25 miles in 24 hours in an advance west of Dmitriev-Lgovsky.

The German high command claimed capture of Lisichansk 37 miles northeast of Slavyansk in a continuing counter-offensive in the Donets basin, however, and declared that the Soviet Third army had been encircled south of Kharkov and was about to be annihilated.

This march enabled them to fashion a giant pincers threatening to grip a huge chunk of the German central front, including Orel, 200 miles south of Moscow.

The British air ministry announced the loss of but one plane in the ninth consecutive night raid on western Germany. Mines also were laid in German waters.

Yesterday Britain's fast wooden bombers, the Mosquitos, smashed at Germany's battered railway communications in in France, picking targets near Le Mans and Valenciennes, after U. S. Flying Fortresses had bombed the Hamm railway yards, the largest in Germany, and the docks at Rotterdam in a possible invasion preliminary.

An unconfirmed claim of the Italian high command said a 7,000-ton Brazilian troop transport and a 12,000-ton American motorship had been sunk in the South Atlantic.

Vatican Condemns German Cruelties

The Vatican radio has told Germany that the Catholic church condemns the enslavement of freedom, the deportation of forced labor and the slaying of innocent hostages, U. S. government monitors said today.

The broadcast did not charge Germany directly with these facts but the inference was clear for the talk was in German and the speaker declared that "we have all learned what war means since the Germans marched into Poland."

The war, he said "is regarded as a license for all imaginable cruelties," including

1. "The persecution of religion the suppression of monasteries and religious houses, the closing of churches and schools."

2. "An unprecedented enslavement of human freedom."

3. "The deportation of thousands for forced labor."

4. "The killing of the innocent and guilty alike."

5. "The extermination of cultural values hundreds of years old."

6. "The unpardonable commandeering of human beings, especially of school and university youth, for the aims of a state that reigns supreme and has lost contact with the laws of God."

The broadcast was made Tuesday on the fifth anniversary of Pope Pius XII's accession the government monitors said.

OLD GOLDS HIT FOR AD CLAIMS

Lorillard Company Cited For Use Of "Digest Tests."

WASHINGTON — (UP) — The P. Lorillard company, Incorporated, Jersey City, N. J., is charged by the federal trade commission with misrepresenting its current advertising of Old Gold cigarets based on a Readers' Digest report of laboratory tests.

The FTC said that the magazine laboratory tests reported 2.04 MG. of nicotine per cigaret in the smoke of Old Golds and the amount in two other of the seven brands tested was slightly higher, 2.20 M G., while the average cigaret with the largest content was 3.02 MG. The FTC added.

"However, these differences in nicotine were insignificant, and Lorillard company in its advertising failed to disclose that the laboratory report further states: 'The differences between brands, are practically speaking, small and no single brand is so superior to its competitors as to justify its selection on the ground that it is less harmful.' Man She Was Last Seen With, Kills Himself.

PHOENIX, Ariz. — (AP) — The body of Mrs. Jessie Beasley, pretty brunet, was found in the Grand canal today, nearly a mile from where officers recovered the automobile in which she was last seen.

Mrs. Beasley disappeared Wednesday morning after she accepted a ride to work from James Billetti, 51-year-old caretaker of a ranch owned by William Spagnola, mayor of Youngstown, Ohio.

Billetti killed himself with a shotgun when officers found him hiding in a chicken coop to which he had fled shortly after his partly submerged car had been found in the canal.

OPA SETS UP APRIL 1 PORK PRICE CEILINGS

Kearns Packing company, charges violation of restriction order No. 1 regulating the amount of meats sold, and price regulation order No. 169 which schedules types and kinds of meats to be sold and requiring inspection and grading by U. S. department of agriculture inspectors.

In the injunction suit the Mansfield packer is charged with selling greater quantities of meats of various kinds in a percentage larger than the restriction order basis and with failing to keep and submit to OPA records of weights bought and sold or to keep and maintain and submit price schedules.

The suit asks that the Kearns plant be restrained from slaughtering any animals until all regulations have been complied with.

Similar suits were filed in Canton, Cincinnati and other federal district courts. "Today's action," Attorney James C. Gruener of the Cleveland OPA office said, "in part constitutes the OPA's answer to black markets in meat.

OPA officials said today that black market operations had contributed to the rising prices of livestock and predicted that the ceilings to become effective April 1 will result in a lowering of meat costs to the consumer.

While the first ceiling deals with pork products only, OPA officials said it will be extended to retail sales of beef, veal, lamb and mutton, and eventually to hundreds of other common food items.

The pork price schedule is expected to bring about an immediate decline in liveweight hog prices which had soared to $16 per hundredweight in yesterday's market.

"The OPA is determined to stamp out all practices, wilful or otherwise, which contribute to black market operations" Gruener declared in indicating that court action will be invoked to prevent unwarranted price boosts for foodstuffs other than meat.

Small packing firms were named in today's suits in Sandusky, Middlefield, Geneva, Chardon, Toledo, Warren, Cincinnati, Columbus, Zanesville, Cambridge and elsewhere in Ohio, as well as in Mansfield.

The OPA sought by today's action to enforce complete compliance with a section of the second war power act which provides that no non-quota slaughterer shall, during the period from Oct. 1 to Dec. 31, 1942, deliver more controlled meat of each type resulting from his own slaughter than he delivered during the same period the previous year.

The OPA charged that some of the defendants failed, neglected and refused to keep accurate records, thus making it impossible to determine whether they exceeded quotas and that the records of other defendants indicated they had exceeded greatly their quotas.

HORVITZ FIRM BID'S LOWEST

Contract To Be Awarded Saturday For Cuyahoga Road Job.

COLUMBUS (UP)- The Horvitz Construction company of Cleveland submitted the low bids today for 6.357 miles of highway work in Cuyahoga county.

The firm bid $1,429,140 under System A, and $1,299,183 under System B, as compared with highway department estimates of $1,644,000 and $1,510,000. The project includes grading, drainage and paving of state routes 237 and 713 in Cleveland, Berea and Brookpark, and a portion of the Lakewood-Strongville road. The work must be completed by June 30, 1944.

Lombardo Brothers of Cleveland submitted the second lowest bids. Contracts will be awarded Saturday.

Seconds after he was awakened by the explosion, Dix said he was on deck and heard the splashes of men jumping into the water.

"I ordered boat number two lowered and men jumped in as it went down past the decks," he recalled.

Dix recounted that he then went aft to cut loose the life rafts.

"I could hardly walk, the ship was listing so bad," he said "I got down into the water to swim to a raft and the water was so cold when I climbed on I could hardly move."

Loss of life might have been still greater had it not been for the red signal lights affixed to life belts Assistant Purser James F. Caulley, 40, of Brownsville, Pa., declared.

"Those lights did more than anything to save lives," he said, recounting how partly filled lifeboats and rafts navigated toward the tiny red glows visible in flashes through the heavy seas.

Caulley recalled that he was in a stateroom at the time of the torepdoing. One of a group of seven, he was the only survivor.

"In our group was a Captain Kerr of New York state. He was a cool one. Immediately after the blast, Purser Paul Slauson, of New York City announced calmly:

SENATE PANEL ASKS FARMERS BE DEFERRED

Declares Equaling of 1942 Food Output Record Almost Hopeless.

result may be tragic," the report concluded.

Six members of the committee opposed passage of the Bankhead bill on ground that it is a blanket deferment of agricultural workers without taking into account whether the person deferred is producing an amount of essential commodities "which would make his services on the farm more valuable to the nation than his services in the armed forces."

This minority report declared that no evidence was presented that farm citizens as a group "desire or approve any such class deferment; indeed a large proportion of them have declined deferment."

The six senators said the proposed bill "would be an invitation to any who desires to evade service in the armed forces to seek agricultural employment." At the same time, it would prevent registrants from accepting employment in another occupation or industry or even on another farm, their report said.

Sanders had raised his danger signals before the committee while Wickard was telling another committee that there is little prospect of American farmers raising as much food this year as last.

Wickard admits that regardless of how much food is raised this year it will not be enough for all civilian, military and lend-lease demands.

Sanders believes that if the United States uses its head as well as its muscle, all food production goals can be met—and with fewer farm workers than in 1942.

He has recommended immediate enactment of a specific legislative program for solution of this year's farm problem as well as a long-range program for next year and the post-war world. It suggests elimination of the "tremendous waste" of manpower on farms, farming by counties instead of by individual small farms, consolidation of small farms and reallocation of crops, government contracting of crops, importation of foreign labor and government insurance of planting costs.

"Industry has had to reorganize itself completely —and to its detriment in many cases—in order to win the war," Sanders said.

"Agriculture is the only element of our economy that can benefit permanently by the things it needs to do to win the war."

Sanders' thesis: — Agriculture should be converted to war production the same way washing machine factories were converted to machine gun plants and automobile plants to tank factories.

His alternative:—"Reduced food for the civilian population or a reduced war effort; and a reduced war effort is reflected in a longer war and increased total casualties."

Sanders' report, made at the direction of the senate committee, blasted "peacetime administrative procedures" of the agriculture department and denounced Wickard's recent order which lifted wheat planting restrictions despite the fact that there is a two years supply of wheat in storage.

He praised the "excellent basic principles" of the agriculture department's program, but intimated that it had bogged down at the "paper policy" stage as a result of "too many conferences and too little action."

Sanders proposed this program for immediate action:

1. Enact a farmers' insurance bill to reimburse farmers for cost of plowing, planting and cultivating acreage they are unable to harvest because of lack of manpower. Guarantee dairy farmers against loss through having to sacrifice herds because of labor shortage, the government to agree to buy milk cattle which the owners are unable to handle.

2. Drastically curtail 1943 planting of short staple cotton and wheat, of which there are large surpluses, and plant such acreage to vegetables and other scarce items.

3. Appoint an administrator to contract with Mexico for crops in which there is a shortage here and to contract in Africa, Spain, Portugal and adjacent territories for production of food supplies for men overseas.

4. Supply farm machinery to be operated by farmers' cooperatives on a rental basis—the same way that the government supplies factories to be operated by private corporations.

5 Carry as a direct government war expenditure all excess farming costs over normal, by paying, if necessary, an additional wage to workers taken from highly paid jobs for season harvesting jobs—these costs not to be added to parity prices.

County Population Up 585; War Areas Gaining Thousands

another busy war center, gained more than 3 000 Lorain county's increase was nearly 5,000.

Most of the rural counties in northcentral Ohio had population losses. Ashland county's loss was 1,830, while Crawford county's population declined 1,196; Holmes county, 582; Knox county, 1,952, and Morrow county, 824. Huron county gained 148.

The census bureau pointed out that the constant shifting of workers may have made big differences in the population of certain areas since last May.

Richland county's trend probably is upward since Chamber of Commerce figures show more persons are employed now in Mansfield industries than last year and a number of workers are being attracted to the Shelby air supply depot project.

POLISH OFF JAP CONVOY SHREDS IN FAR PACIFIC

Allied Fliers Sink Last Two Destroyers, Boost Enemy's Plane Toll to 82.

strengthen the enemy garrisons on New Guinea was converted, as an Allied communique said, into a "major disaster."

A spokesman said today further analysis of battle photographs would be required to determine the nature of the warships in the convoy. Three of the 10 warships were at first believed to be cruisers, but later reports indicated they might have been large destroyers.

Allied planes, after pounding the convoy all day Wednesday, returned yesterday to Huon gulf, on which the Japanese base of Lae is located, and found two Japanese destroyers still afloat although damaged. These were sunk.

"Intense and widespread searches by our reconnaissance aircraft early yesterday morning failed to reveal any remaining trace of the enemy convoy in the entire area beyond floating wreckage and occasionally lifeboats and barges containing troops," the communique said.

A number of power barges loaded with troops from sunken transports were sighted off Finschhafen, New Guinea, and "were destroyed with all on board," it was announced.

Long-range fighters and attack units meanwhile swept at low level over Lae and airdromes in the vicinity and poured 30,000 rounds of cannon and machinegun fire into installations and planes on the field, the communique reported.

Six Japanese fighters on the ground were destroyed as they were refueling and 30 other enemy planes managed to take off and challenge the Allied raiders. In the fight which followed, 17 of the Japanese planes were shot out of action and eight of them are known definitely to have been shot down. The others were damaged and withdrew from the fight.

porting actor for his role in "Johnny Eager."

Miss Garson, who'd worked all day before Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's cameras, arrived late at the banquet in a low-cut black evening gown. When Miss Fontaine, wearing the same pink gown in which she won the prize last year, announced the winner, Miss G. planted a kiss on her lips, wept silently for a moment and cried:

"This is the most wonderful thing that ever happened to me. If I ever win another Oscar, it will not be the same."

The Cagney, who won his statue for his work emulating George M. Cohan as a song and dance man, didn't weep. Not exactly. But when Gary Cooper handed him the prize, he grabbed the latter's hand and cried:

"Pal, don't leave me."

Walt Disney got a statuette for "Der Fuehrer's Face," 1942's one-reeler hit.

Irving Berlin issued himself a statuette for his song, "I'm Dreaming of a White Christmas."

"The man who won that prize is a good kid," he said. "And he deserves it."

Miss Wright, one of the year's dramatic finds, wept copiously when she received her reward for her work in "Mrs. Miniver."

Miss Garson, in receiving the award, made a speech. "I don't suppose there is a single person who would not like to have such an award. I came here a stranger five years ago; now I'm in love with everybody I have worked with, I——."

Miss Garson's handkerchief went again to her eyes. The 15th annual academy banquet was over.

Relief At Last For Your Cough

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes.

Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics.

No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. (Adv.)

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, MARCH 5, 1943.

No more direct help can be given by civilians to our boys on the fighting fronts than by contributing to the Red Cross.

One professor says "I think" are the two most overworked words nowadays, but "they say" must be running a close second.

A Washington spokesman wants people to explain what they mean when they talk about "bureaucrats"—possibly never thinking that such language is barred from the mails.

Farmers Also Deserve 'Cost Plus'

ADOPTION of the point-rationing system of food apportionment serves to awaken Americans to realization that, after all, products of the soil are of primary importance, whether in war or peace, and that if the United States is to serve as the "bread-basket" as well as the arsenal of the United Nations during the war, and the reconstruction period thereafter, the problem of maintaining and increasing agricultural production stands at the head of the list among matters demanding immediate action.

Draining of farm labor into the armed services and into more highly paid industrial jobs has already caused deep concern among farmers themselves, and among persons who understand requirements for competent farm workers.

There has been a mistaken notion among what are called "city folks" that almost anybody, young or old, can do farm work without previous experience or knowledge of duties, but any such idea is a holdover from early days of small farm operation and cannot be associated with the requirements of successful live stock, dairy, or general farming under present conditions.

Nor can there be successful defense of that other old notion that competent and dependable farm workers are not entitled to as high wages as persons employed in other kinds of manual or specialized work. Any idea that the cost of farm labor should not be reflected in the price of farm products is as fallacious as argument that labor costs are not a part of industrial production.

The question arises, however, if industrial wages are permitted to advance in response to demands, and farm prices are allowed to increase to the extent of keeping pace with higher labor costs and general uptrend of the things that farmers must buy, how are the millions of people who are on fixed incomes going to be able to meet living costs?

Farm prices cannot be kept down while industrial wages are climbing. The war cannot be won without sufficient food for the armed forces and the civilian population—as well as to meet commitments to our allies and to starving people in Axis-ridden countries.

Matters involving farm production are being badly bungled in Washington and until some more practicable program of supplying sufficient competent farm help and making returns from farm operation commensurate with profits in other lines of business requiring capital investment, managerial ability and labor, the outlook for this particular phase of the national war effort is not encouraging.

International Trade Means Exchange

FREDERICK C. CRAWFORD, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, emphasizes the point that international trade is not a one-way operation, but a two-sided business that is closely related to the problems of world peace.

"Diplomatic peace and economic warfare cannot live side by side," he says. "If we want a market in China, Russia, India and other nations for the goods we can produce best, obviously we must not bar those nations from our markets. If we are going to fight as a world nation, we must also trade like one."

To most Americans today this may seem merely a clear, frank statement of fact. But much loss has been sustained, and much grief endured in the past, by failing to grasp this simple truth and act on it. And there is no assurance even now, that when this global war is over there will be a more rational exchange of goods.

Moderate tariffs presumably will still be necessary, to safeguard crucial industries and as a convenient way to supplement direct taxes in meeting government expenses. But statesmen and business men alike are coming to realize that there is more benefit all round in encouraging international trade than in forbidding it—that properly handled, trade makes trade, promotes good will, and results in a more peaceful and prosperous world.

Regular Hours for Liquor Stores

MEMBERS of the AA*, as well as others whose habits do not require frequent patronage of state liquor stores, may find it difficult to fully appreciate the seriousness being attached to the present shortage of high-powered intoxicants.

Impetus given to the sale of whisky several months ago by liquor board hints of intended rationing, accompanied by request that patrons voluntarily limit themselves to "one quart a day," may partially account for the current shortage—or at least have hurried it along.

It appears that the common sense idea of closing liquor stores when there was no liquor on hand to be sold has been overruled by state liquor board and that stores are to be kept open during specified hours each week day—even if they have nothing to sell.

In line with the suggestion that individual patrons limit purchase of whisky to "one quart a day"—which is comparable to "cutting" cigaret smokers to around 20 packs a day—the state liquor board might now make an earnest appeal to minors, and others who are not yet habitual excessive drinkers, to lay off for awhile, so as not to inflict cruel and unusual punishment on the advanced class of topers.

One of the difficulties in impressing the world with the superiority of democracy will be to make the people of other countries understand about Jimmy Petrillo.

It has been ruled in Germany that a horse cannot be named "Adolf"—which indicates that friends of the noble animal still have some influence.

Tombstones are mentioned in a new list of non-essentials issued from Washington—indicating that "the forgotten man" is to remain so.

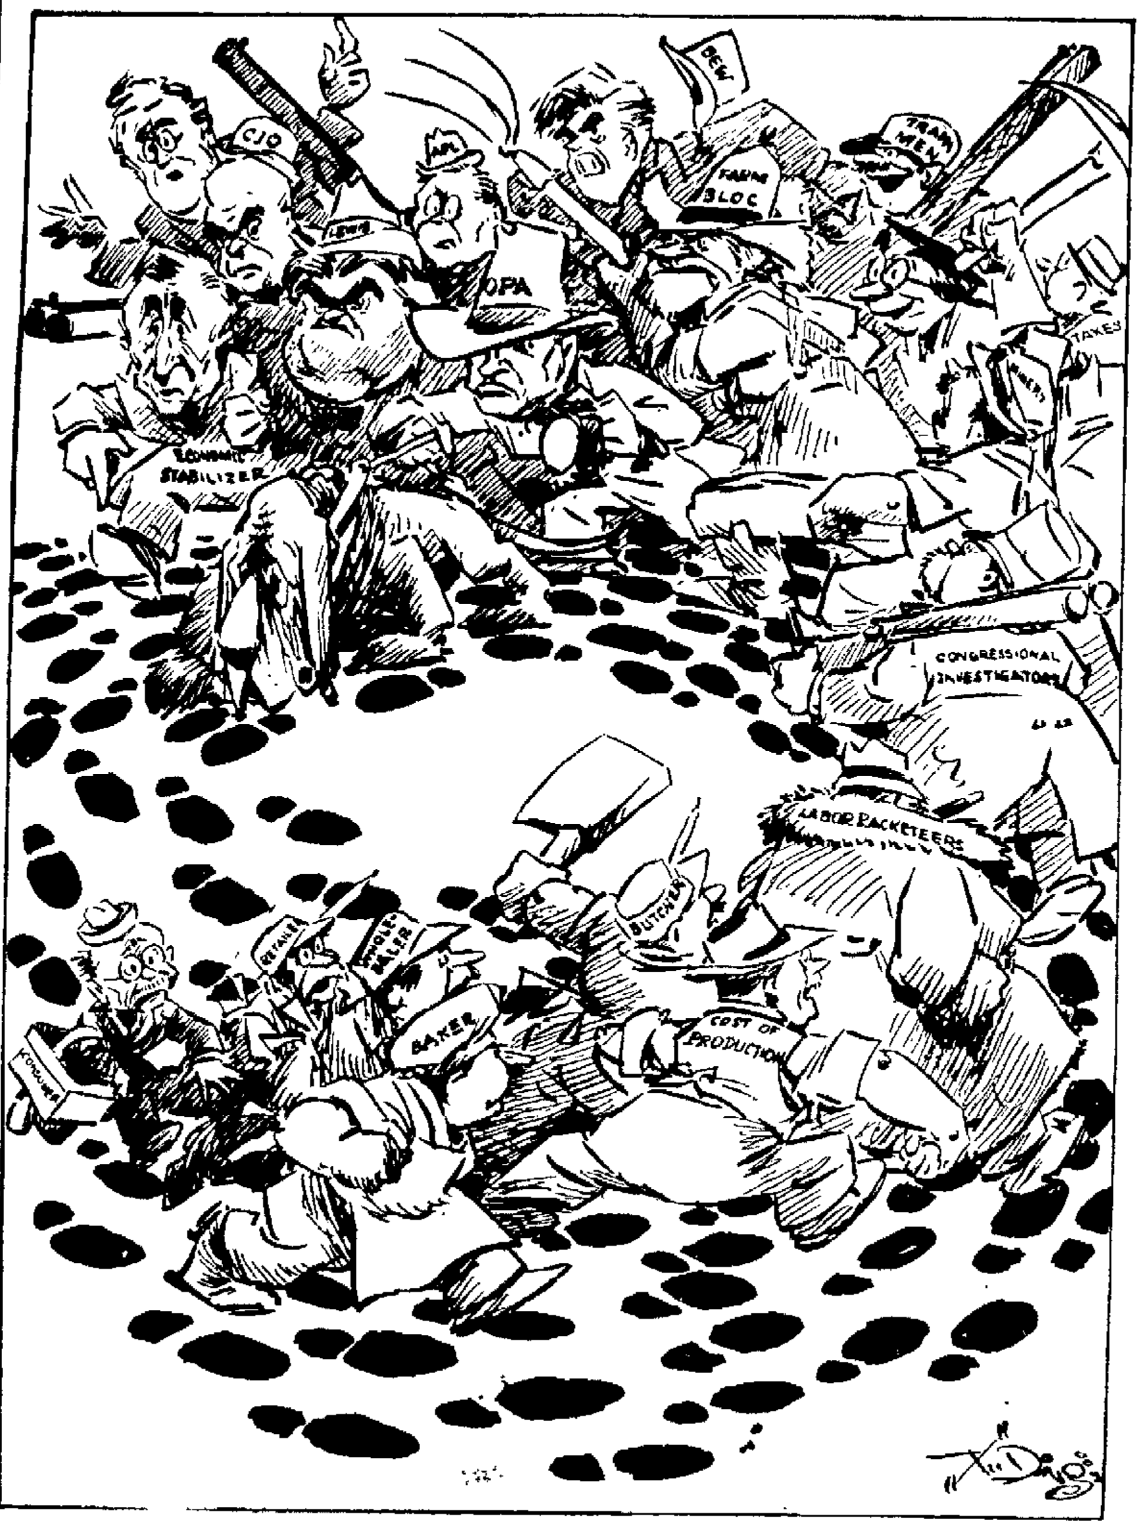
POSSE ON THE TRAIL OF THE SCOUNDREL WHO RAISED THE COST OF LIVING



Many Obstacles to Solution of Complicated Problems of India

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

WE COME to the end of this series of articles on the dangerous Indian political crisis—a situation which has overrun its natural boundaries and has become a threat to the war effort and post-war interests of the United Nations.

Perforce it's in some ways an unsatisfactory termination. It leaves us without any concerted move, at least any evident action, to break the deadlock between the British government and the Indian Nationalists.

Still, the position is far from hopeless. As I've tried to make clear, I found a widespread belief in both camps that the quarrel is susceptible to settlement. There has been a great change in viewpoint since those bitter days of last summer when the Cripps negotiations over dominion status collapsed, to be followed by bloody disorders and arrests of Nationalist leaders.

Now when I say the crisis is susceptible to settlement I'm not predicting it will be settled. The first requisite for solution is for somebody to make a move which will permit the case to be reopened. The second requisite is speed, for there are dangerous tendencies afloat.

Fortune has chosen to smile on reconciliation by bringing Mahatma Gandhi through his hunger-strike. Had this most powerful individual in all India died in internment it might have lighted a conflagration which would have swept far.

Well, which of the belligerents is going to make the first move?

It's going a long way to expect any third party to intervene—at least officially—in what started out to be a family quarrel. I have in mind, of course, that many Indians have been anxious to secure intervention by President Roosevelt.

Here I must repeat what I have stated in previous articles. The consensus as I found it among impartial observers was that success probably could be achieved if the government would adopt arbitrary methods and set up a provisional national government in which the Indian factions would be invited to participate as a patriotic move in the interests of an Allied victory.

The striking thing is that this view also was held by some of the greatest of the Indian leaders who, not so long ago, would have refused even to consider any such strong-arm procedure.

This proposal, and its widespread support, strikes me as being the most important recent development in this imbroglio. It also seems to hold out the greatest prospect for a successful settlement.

The British authorities would, without reference to anybody, announce inauguration of the provisional national government. All the leaders of the Indian parties, and the princes of the Indian states, would be invited to participate.

It would be announced that this provisional government would be developed as fast as possible into the sovereign government which the Indians have been promised. However, the leaders would be asked to make the initial business a whole-hearted co-operation in the war effort, and let the constitution and permanent government follow.

* * *

SOME form of federal government would be aimed at, in order that there might be a unified India which would include both the provinces and the states ruled by the princes.

This would eliminate any such project as the Moslem demand for Pakistan—the division of India into two wholly independent states, one Moslem and the other Hindu.

Both the British government and the Hindu leaders oppose Pakistan as destructive of unity and say that the Moslem minority can be safeguarded by the constitution. Many observers believe that Mahomed Ali Jinnah, the great Moslem leader, would be prepared to compromise and join a federal government.

There undoubtedly would have to be a revision of some of the present provincial boundaries in order to adjust some existing inequalities. Many unbiased experts also contend that a large number of the princely states, of which there are some 562, woud have to be wiped out and reformed into provinces.

These states, which are ruled over by maharajas and lesser potentates, present one of the larger problems involved in the establishment of a federal government. The bigger states—Hyderabad, Baroda and Bikaner, for instance—fit into the new picture very well. But scores of the rest are merely glorified country estates—far too small to make suitable units in a reconstructed India. They would merely be barnacles on the ship of state.

This would create an uncomfortable position for the British government, especially since these states are largely sovereign, insofar as concerns internal affairs. Britain has treaty obligations of long standing to consider.

ELIMINATION of some of these tiny princely states might help solve another situation which has been crying out for redress through the generations. That is the plight of the 60,000,000 Hindu untouchables who are condemned by the caste system to live as pariahs by their fellows.

There is a growing feeling in India that the only cure for this terrible evil is to create a new state for the untouchables and collect them into this from all over the country. This state would take its place in the Free India. It might easily be built out of some the tiny principalities which now exist.

The above is the general idea on which many serious minds are working in India. The difficulties of such a program are recognized, but none of these seems unsurmountable. Obviously the only way to find out whether the plan is feasible is to try it.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Monday, March 5, 1923.

City Loan and Savings company opened office in Southern hotel building with Joe C. Hartline as manager.

Word was received that Rev. R. C. Goebel had been appointed pastor of St. Peter's Catholic church, after having served St. Aloysius church at Bowling Green.

Dr. Frederick J. Kallmerten, 71, former Mansfield physician, died in Toledo.

Cafeteria style of service was introduced at Evergreens tea room.

Street car traffic was tied up at Park avenue and Main street corner when wheel came off of auto driven by A. E. Beillhart.

Lexington Oil and Gas company started test well on Dunshee farm south of village.

C. N. Blackman moved from 92 Stewart avenue to 38 Columbia avenue.

TODAY IN HISTORY

The Boston Massacre took place on this day in 1770 when British soldiers fired on colonists, killing three and wounding eight. This was one of the sparks that set off the Revolution.

LIFE'S LIKE THAT

"Was that the all-clear?"

Dave Boone Says:

THAT'S a funny one about lifting the ban on automobile pleasure driving March 22, but cutting the "A" card drivers down to two gallons per coupon. That's practically freezing the carburetors and putting a ceiling on optimism.

* * *

The poor "A" card holder—the fellow who never asked much, told the truth and tried to co-operate from the outset—always gets it where it won't be any help. About all the new rule will do will be to get rid of the gestapo-like spotters who went around ambushing folks doing any driving whatever, especially if they didn't look important.

* * *

I thought the ban on pleasure driving was working out pretty well. If OPA was going to make any changes it seems to me it might have done something that sounded a little more sensible.

* * *

Once in a lifetime a great human being comes along, who is such a symbol of fine and noble qualities, that he or she makes the rest of us feel like small potatoes. Madame Chiang Kai-shek is such a person.

When you read the news about most women who occupy the limelight in this country and stack them alongside this brave, sincere, truly intelligent and really worthwhile lady, they sure do shrink.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Peace Victory Is Threatened By FDR's Neglect of Political Front

WASHINGTON—Franklin Roosevelt this week begins his eleventh and probably toughest year in office. It will be tough not because of the war, which is in good shape, but because of increasing battles on the home front.

Nothing can ever detract from the long-view record of Roosevelt as a great war leader. But in winning the war, Roosevelt's greatest danger is that he may lose the battle at home—not for himself, not for the Democratic party (which is not important), but for the hopes and ideals of the American people.

There is nothing so dangerous as repeated disillusionment. And if the American people were to suffer the same shattered hopes again as after the last war; if they were to see their permanent peace dreams go up in smoke; if they were to experience the anguish of another depression, and the hatreds of violent internal wrangling, then our political system might not weather the strain.

That is why some of the president's friends wish, and have tactfully suggested, that he follow Abraham Lincoln's example of devoting more time to domestic problems. The war, they feel, is well under way. The main spadework has been done. It is no longer necessary to watch all the details. Meanwhile a lot of disagreeable politics has been going from bad to worse for lack of Roosevelt's masterful touch.

Abe Lincoln's Politics.

LINCOLN, faced with a tragic war and a difficult home front, divided his time between them. He listened patiently to almost every disgruntled politician, with an axe to grind, struggled to keep his political support.

Roosevelt, faced with the same problem, has spent his time almost exclusively on the war. Much of this is necessary. But the president carries it to extremes. He makes it a point to know the location of almost every destroyer in the fleet, discusses the details of ship design, even took time to sketch a plan for the shrubbery of the new naval hospital.

Actually, the president is reliving his old days as assistant secretary of the navy, days which he loved, days when he could afford to take time for ship design and admirals.

But now a political empire is disintegrating around him, with a foreign policy necessarily so difficult that its intricacies may sour a naturally isolationist American people.

FDR's Right Hand.

IN THE ten years he has been in office, Roosevelt has not really changed. But the people around him have. And in all the reams written about Roosevelt after a decade in the White House, no one has emphasized the most important change in his staff.

It is his faithful personal secretary Miss Marguerite (Missy) Le Hand. Few people knew it, but it was Missy who every evening after the stream of callers left, got the "Chief" alone and made him make important decisions.

Postponement of decisions which may jar people's happiness is natural for any president. And FDR is no exception. But Missy lived on the theory that there was no use putting off till tomorrow what you could do today, and she saw that the "Boss" lived up to it. Furthermore, when he made his decisions, she was always in there fighting for the little fellow.

Today, Missy is ill, a casualty of the tremendous pressure of White House work. In her place are Harry Hopkins, a worse procrastinator than Roosevelt and General "Pa" Watson who shields his chief from unpleasant things with a curtain of gold braid.

The earthy, plebeian, do-it-today influence of Missy Le Hand is gone.

Ed Flynn's Defeat.

THAT, perhaps, is one reason why, when a White House order comes through, it frequently happens that the cabinet officer or administration sub-commander waits about two days before carrying it out.

This occurred in the case of Ed Flynn. Back in 1940 when Jim Farley got out of the Democratic national committee, FDR persuaded Flynn to become chairman. He didn't want the job, but the president said, "You can resign and become an ambassador after the campaign is over." "All right I want to go to Mexico," Flynn replied.

Later, the state department objected to Mexico but agreed to Australia, and the president told his secretary Grace Tulley to have press relations secretary Steve Early issue an official statement.

But Steve waited two days. Flynn having received word direct from the president as to when the White House statement would be issued, went ahead with his announcement in New York. He did not know that presidential orders don't mean much these days with White House sub-commanders.

Two days later, when Steve Early got around to it, he issued his announcement, but by that time Flynn was out on a limb. To the senate it looked as if he had forced Roosevelt's hand. That two day delay was what defeated Flynn—a defeat which Roosevelt could not afford.—the first defeat of its kind since the Civil war. And it set a precedent. The senate now knows its strength and is challenging many White House appointments.

War Cabinet.

IN 1933 Roosevelt's cabinet was selected with extreme care to represent every section of the electorate. There was George Dern of Utah as secretary of war, representing western Democrats; Homer Cummings of Connecticut representing New England; Henry Wallace, secretary of agriculture to represent mid-west farmers; Cordell Hull to represent free-traders of the south; Jim Farley to represent Irish Catholics; and Ickes of Illinois to represent liberal Bull Moose Republicans who voted for Roosevelt.

It was a cabinet carefully calculated to give the president political strength — picked in the days when FDR was interested in keeping the people with him.

But his present cabinet is a patch work quilt, built at random. It is neither renowned for administrative ability nor gives him political strength with the country. Only two men, Cordell Hull with the Democratic party, and Harold Ickes with the Bull Moose liberals still carry the political weight for which they were originally selected.

The manner in which the administration is being shoved all over Capitol Hill, the increasing glee with which congress is running the executive by the simple expedient of curtailing funds, all indicate that Abe Lincoln was right, and that Roosevelt has got to give more time to disagreeable senators than to Harry Hopkins, if he is to save the peace after the war—the only thing we are really fighting for.

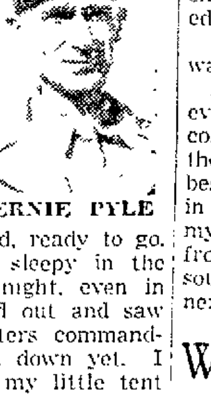
ERNIE PYLE Roving Reporter

Heading Toward Further Action; Approach of Enemy Forces Awaited.

The following dispatch was written before the turn of the tide in Africa. American troops have since recaptured the territory lost around Sbeitla.

THE TUNISIAN FRONT—The night after our tank defeat at Sidi Bou Zid I drove back to our cactus patch near Sbeitla. There I pitched my shelter tent at the same hole where I had dug in a couple of nights before.

Things were tense around the command post. Nobody quite knew what the day's score was, for full reports hadn't come in. It seemed that we would try to stand on a new line around Sbeitla. Our cactus patch was two miles west. There was artillery fire east of Sbeitla when I went to bed. I didn't expect we would get much sleep, and we didn't. At 1 a. m. Corp. William Nikolin shook his bed roll aside and aroused the whole camp. He said I should get my jeep packed, ready to go. A guy is awfully sleepy in the middle of a cold night, even in wartime. I peeked out and saw that the headquarters commandant's tent was not down yet. I knew I could get my little tent down and packed faster than he could, so I rolled over and just lay there—too dopey to have sense enough to be excited.



ERNIE PYLE

In about 10 minutes, when Corp. Nikolin came back, he said just five words:

"German tanks are in Sbeitla."

BROTHER, I had that tent down and my jeep packed in world-record time. But still the final order to move didn't come. Everybody was ready, so we just stood around in the darkness waiting. The empty holes, and the cactus patch where the tents had been, looked funny in the dim moonlight.

Then, suddenly, a giant flame scorched up into the dark eastern sky. We had set off our gasoline dump. In a minute red flares began to shoot out from the glow—that was the ammunition dump.

We knew then it was all over in Sbeitla. All that ammunition that had traveled so far, at such expense and at so much human toil—here it was, shooting off impotently into the sky, like a Fourth of July celebration. Shells exploded continuously. It sounded like a terrific battle raging.

We watched, talking little, walking around to keep warm.

After a couple of hours the evacuation order still hadn't come. So I pulled my bed roll off the jeep, unrolled it on the ground beside the front wheels, crawled in and pulled the mackinaw over my head to keep the accumulating frost off my face. I never slept sounder in my life than during the next three hours.

WHEN I awakened it was just dawn. Trucks were rolling past the edge of our cactus patch. The continuous line headed out toward the highway. It seemed that we had started the withdrawal. Such things as kitchen trucks and supply trains went first.

Our combat teams were holding this side of Sbeitla, so there really was plenty of time so far. But we expected a terrific battle to develop right under our chins during the forenoon. The outlook seemed dark.

A major I knew came past. He said:

"Why don't you and I go to the toilet right now—we won't have another chance today." So we went.

With full daylight came the planes, just as we expected. But they were our planes, this time. They kept coming all forenoon and all day. We had the sky today.

Finally, it became obvious that our withdrawal was going to be accomplished without too much opposition from the Germans. The major and I would see another sunset, after all.

Then word came that hard fighting was going on at Feriana, 45 miles west.

So I started the jeep, waved a last good-bye down-valley at Sbeitla, and slipped into the slow stream of vehicles headed west. The day was miserably dark and cold. Just as I started it began to hail.

Yes, hail in Africa—even the skies pelting us in our retreat.

Soil Conservation Issue.

Editor News-Journal:

Why will our county not become a soil conservation area? The idea of more taxes was a small issue, although indirectly we would all have had to help pay for it. What the Fish and Game association said meant little one way or the other.

But this one-sided vote did prove beyond any doubt that the farmers of this county do not like New Deal proposals of any sort. Here was their chance to take a shot at one and their marksmanship was excellent plus. Furthermore, as owners they expect to manage and operate their own farms as they see fit, or best know how, instead of being told by someone in Washington who doesn't know how. As yet they voted in the American way.

WESTERN P. T. A. HAS PROMINENT SPEAKERS

Dr. L. W. Harding, Louis Bromfield and Rev. W. D. Darling Talk to Members of Western Avenue School's Parent-Teacher Association.

DR. L. W. HARDING of Ohio State university, Louis Bromfield, well-known author and lecturer, and Rev. W. D. Darling presented the varied and interesting program before the P. T. A. of Western Avenue school. J. E. Clark, principal of the school, introduced the speakers.

"Arithmetic In the Mansfield Schools" was the subject of the talk by Dr. Harding. In introducing the speaker, Mr. Clark displayed a graph showing results of achievement tests of sixth grade pupils in the city in relation to a standard established by the nation as a whole.

Preceding with this thought, Dr. Harding mentioned newer methods of teaching arithmetic to make it more vital and comprehensible and a greater challenge to the pupils. He stressed the need of teacher-parent contact in realizing the capabilities of the child, thus insuring better co-operation for the fullest development of the child's capacity for achievement. He also told of the plans being worked out for better results in the teaching of arithmetic.

"India," the land of strange customs, conflicting ideas of emotions, politics and religions, was the theme of the talk given by Mr Bromfield In his talk, he noted that very few people in America and in Great Britain have any conception of the problem known as "The Indian Question" He stated, "We Americans are apt to think of it as a problem similar to our problem of independence from Great Britain. There is no comparison. India is made up of a great many classes of people who have no common bond in ancestry, race, politics or language. It is made up of a great many small states, each governed by a ruler who is the land owner of the state.

"It is safe to say that at least 100,000,000 people never heard of the British Empire, nor is there any word in their language comparable to our own words of freedom and liberty." The Hindu doesn't bother to fight any form of religion, but merely absorbs it and mixes it with his own. Mr. Bromfield was clear and concise in his portrayal of the Indian Question

The third speaker of the evening was Rev Darling His thoughts were based on the theme suggested by the song, "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition." "We have much need of praise for the leadership of our country and for the many miracles in this present conflict. We are on God's side" quoted Rev. Darling

Rev. Darling elaborated along the line that our part in "passing the ammunition" is giving, working and sacrificing to do everything possible to make it easier for the boys in service, and those doing their part in the war effort.

That is just as vital, according to Rev. Darling, as the actual passing of the ammunition and manning of guns. Too often people get the idea of "Passing God and praising the ammunition" forgetting we must have faith in God, in ourselves and in our countrymen and "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition."

Preceding the addresses of the evening, a short routine business meeting held with the president, Floyd Smith, in charge Plans for the pupils Victory Gardens were presented by Mrs Ray Paulson, chairman of that committee for the school. It was voted to increase the prizes offered to stimulate interest in that activity.

The attendance prize was won by the fifth grade, whose teacher is Miss Leona Miles.

Central Methodist W. S. C. S. Has Meet

"NO DUTY Can Seem Lowly To Him Who Lives With Thee." was the title of the topic of devotions led by Mrs. Leroy Strain, which opened the meeting of the W S C S of the Central Methodist church at a 12:15 luncheon Thursday afternoon, at which Mrs. M W. Stretch was hostess.

Mrs. Harry Iler, program chairman, introduced Mrs. Grant Ward of the Guild, who in turn introduced members who gave brief talks. These included Mrs A. J Hill, discussing "Industrial Defense Workers and the Challenge to the Church Women," which was answered by Mrs Ralph Bair, telling of plans made by church women to meet these needs.

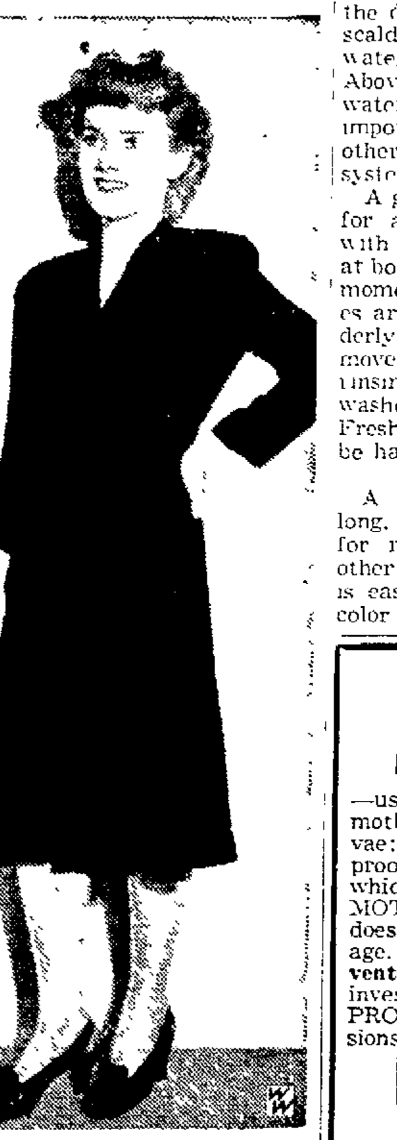
Mrs. N. Yarger discussed agricultural migrants and what the church is doing for them. An interesting map talk on Latin America was presented by Mrs. W. S. Warmack. Mrs. D. E. Patterson told the group who their neighbors were, and Mrs H. Handel talked about the languages and culture of these people.

Religion in South America was discussed by Mrs. Ray Paulson who stated that democracy has its roots in Christianity. The current events were given by Mrs. A H. Au.

The program was concluded by Mrs. Corson Brower singing "I Love a Little Cottage," accompanied by Mrs. Elsie Ireland, at the piano.

The Circle meeting and business session followed, with Mrs. E. C. Jenkins in charge, after which Mrs. Charles Mattie closed the meeting with prayer. The next meeting will be held in the church parlors April 1.

For Neckwear



BASIC DRESS. Here's the "little black dress" that you garnish with neckwear.

Old Time Dishpan Sees New Vogue

The old-fashioned dishpan is enjoying a new war-time vogue. Where water is on the government's "save and conserve" list, many housewives are learning that washing dishes in a dispan not only helps to save water; it is easy, pleasant, and more effective than any of the pan-less ways.

A little water will go a long way if a few simple rules are followed. First, scrape the dishes carefully; second, make the order of washing glassware first, then silver, and last, pots and pans; third, rinse the dishes in a container of clear, scalding water, rather than with water from a kettle or the faucet. Above all, remember that when water is scarce it is particularly important to put the accent on the other essentials of dishwashing—system and soap.

A good dishwashing system calls for a clean, uncluttered kitchen with cleared off working surfaces at both sides of the sink. Precious moments can be saved if the dishes are scraped and stacked in orderly piles on one side when removed from the table and if the rinsing pan is ready to receive the washed dishes on the other side. Fresh towels and dishcloths should be hanging on the towel rods.

A slotted, wooden spoon with long, round handle is convenient for mixing batters and stirring other foods. It makes little noise, is easy to hold and will not discolor foods.

MEMBERS OF W. S. C. S. SPEAK AT MEETING

Talks Given By Group About Countries In South America; Mrs. Frank Rudd, Mrs. D. L. Divelbiss Head Meeting.

VARIED and interesting talks were given by members of the W. S. C. S. of the First Methodist church at its luncheon meeting held Thursday afternoon at 12:30 at the church at which Mrs. D. L. Divelbiss and Circle 2 were in charge of the luncheon and Circle 1 and Mrs. Frank Rudd in charge of the program.

Mrs. O. G. Place presided at the business meeting. Mrs. J. L. Stevens spoke briefly on the block plan. Devotions were in charge of Mrs. Leo Hartman, who chose as her topic, "Faith and Belief." She also read topics from the "Christian Advocate.

Mrs. Anna Onstodt made a few remarks and read a hymn in memory of Dr. Ralph Diffendorfer's mother.

"I Will Lay Me Down In Peace" was the title of a vocal solo presented by Mrs. C. E. Reese, who was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. A. C. Butterfield.

Short talks were given by various members on the countries of South America, about religion and government, how the two interlocked, and their influence on the people. Brazil was discussed by Mrs. Butterfield. Mrs. Frank Rudd told something of Argentina. Mrs. Wayne Ward of Bolivia and Mrs. George Hout of Peru, the land of mystery.

Circle 3 will be in charge of the luncheon and Circle 4 in charge of the program at the next board meeting at the group, scheduled for April 1. The executive board meeting will be held June 3.
